Nixon still vows he will not quit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Facing the gravest crisis of his presidency, Richard M. Nixon bluntly told his Cabinet today he will not voluntarily leave the nation's highest office.

Cabinet members who emerged from the urgent, 90-minute session quoted the President as saying he "intends to stay on and allow the Constitution to be the overriding factor."

"We have laws in this land and he is sworn to uphold the laws," Treasury Secretary William E. Simon told newsmen as he left the White House.

Demands for Nixon's resignation mounted swiftly after his disclosure Monday that he tried within a week of the Watergate burglary to thwart a crucial phase of the FBI's investigation of the case.

Some of the strongest pressure for Nixon's removal from office came from his staunchest supporters in the past.

All 10 of the Republicans on the House Judiciary Committee who voted against all three articles of impeachment approved by the committee said Monday's disclosures had caused them to reassess their positions.

Many of them said flatly they would vote for impeachment if Nixon does not resign.

Nixon got solid backing from the Cabinet members.

Participants in the meeting said Nixon stressed that he would not resign.

"The President sincerely believes he has not committed an impeachable offense," Simon said. "He also believes the Constitution provides for a process that should indeed be overriding."

Simon said there was no discussion of the 25th Amendment, a constitutional provision under which a president can temporarily step down and allow his vice president to become acting chief executive.

White House officials have confirmed that both resignation and 25th Amendment options have been considered by the President and firmly rejected.

Simon said while Nixon didn't ask for expressions of support from his Cabinet "of course he got it."

"We've got a country to run," Simon said. "Let's not have this tragedy obscure the fact that we have a lot of determined people at work" on such problems as the economy.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger emerged to tell newsmen U.S. foreign policy traditionally has been bipartisan and that "no foreign government should assume" any alteration in this because of Watergate.

Kissinger ignored repeated questions about whether he personally would favor a Nixon resignation.

Secretary of Labor Peter J. Brennan was asked if any Cabinet members indicated they wanted out of the administration.

"Everybody's staying on," he responded. "They've got a job to do."

One-cent sales tax may help city raise money

A one-cent city sales tax was discussed by the City Council Monday night as a means of raising money for future city improvements.

Mayor Frank Ferrell said Sikeston has reached the point where finding of additional revenue has become a real problem.

"We are at the point where we have to decide to move on, sit still or fall backward," he said. He added that Sikeston would soon outgrow its tax structure.

Acting City Manager Bill Whitlock said recently that city services will begin deteriorating within a year if more revenue is not found.

The higher cost of everything is cited as the major cause of the city's financial troubles.

Whitlock presented to the council a fact sheet and a proposal for improvements which could come to the city with the adoption of a sales tax.

The improvements included an accelerated street improvement program, upgrading of the police and fire departments, a new northside fire station and equipment, an improved parks and recreation program, a reduction or elimination of garbage pickup fees, lower real estate taxes, funds available for matching future federal grants and having more people participate in city funding.

City officials have said in the past that a sales tax would allow the city to collect revenues from people who do not now pay city taxes but use city facilities, such as renters and out-of-town residents who shop in Sikeston.

The sales tax would raise about $450,000 in its first year, Whitlock said.

The council will hold a joint public meeting with the City Planning and Zoning Commission on Aug. 20, at which David Pence, city manager of Poplar Bluff, will discuss what the adoption of a one- cent sales tax has meant to Poplar Bluff.

If the council favors the sales tax, voters will be asked to decide the issue in the November general election. With voter approval, the sales tax would go into effect on April 1, 1975.

The money would be collected by the State Department of Revenue, along with the state sales tax, and then be returned to the city. Whitlock said the state can collect the tax cheaper than the city could hire someone to collect it.

No opposition was raised to the airport runway extension project at a public hearing on the environmental impact study during the council meeting. The only negative comments were

Residents asked once again to cut water use

The Sikeston Board of Municipal Utilities is again asking residents to cut back on their use of water.

Water use in the city remains over three million gallons a day, far beyond the city filtration plant's capacity.

Director of Utilities Dick Inman said that if the "situation continues to exist, it will be necessary for city crews to curtail the usage by closing valves to different areas of the city."

Inman said he has seen residents watering their lawns after dark. In some cases, he said, the water was flowing out into the street.

Inman initially asked residents to cut back on water usage on July 23, and he reported water use dropped for the next few days. However, residents went back to their old habits soon afterward, he said.

Fire damages loading dock

The loading dock at the Caproco, Inc. building was badly damaged by a fire a state fire marshal says set by arsonists about 11 p.m. Monday. Firemen said damage was extensive and a trailer backed up to the dock was destroyed by the fire.

State fire official says Caproco incident arson

A representative of the state fire marshal's office was sifting through the debris today at the Caproco, Inc. plant on Industrial Drive looking for clues in a Monday night fire which destroyed a trailer and damaged part of the plant.

Louis Gray of Jefferson City said the fire was definitely the work of an arsonist.

Fire Chief Larry Linnemeyer said the fire started about 11 p.m. and was discovered at 11:30 p.m. by a watchman.

The fire was set near a trailer owned by Tucker Truck Line, located across the street on St. John's Drive, backed up to the loading dock on the east side of the building. The truck was filled with pool liners and trampolines.

Firemen fought the blaze until 1:15 a.m. today with two pumpers and a ladder truck.

The fire damaged the loading dock area, a shed on the east wall and materials stored outside in the area of the fire.

Linnemeyer said he could not estimate the damage in dollars but that it was considerable.

Linnemeyer said a sprinkler system kept the fire from spreading into the building. He said two sprinkler heads were activated by the fire.

When fire trucks arrived, the south entrance to the loading area was blocked with telephone poles, and the trucks had to go around to the north of the building, Linnemeyer said. When firemen got to the fire they found the area covered with nails. Linnemeyer said one of the fire trucks had a flat tire this morning.

This is the second fire at the plant since workers went out on strike.

A bale of hay was pushed under a tractor- trailer truck July 18 and set afire, but the fire was extinguished before it caused any damage.

Earlier Monday firemen were called to a weed fire at 604 E. Matthews St.

The fire was discovered about 3:15 p.m. and spread to a fence and utility pole before being extinguished.

Linnemeyer said a child had been seen playing in the area where the fire started shortly before the blaze was discovered.

Wardell man killed in 1-car accident

A 95- year - old Wardell man was killed in a one- car accident near Pascola and four persons were injured in three area traffic accidents Monday, the highway patrol reported today.

Prince Smith was killed at 2:15 p.m. in an accident on Route B one mile and a half north of Pascola.

The accident occurred when a car driven by McKinley Criss, 76, of Wardell ran off the road and struck a bridge railing.

Criss was seriously injured and was taken to Pemiscot County Memorial Hospital in Hayti.

Smith's body was taken to Jimmy Osburn Funeral Home in Wardell, where arrangements are incomplete.

Two Arbyrd women were seriously injured at 1:50 p.m. at the intersection of Route YY and Highway 164 near Hornersville when a car driven by Dorothy Christos, 64, made a left turn onto Highway 164 into the path of an eastbound truck driven by Binnie Fleeman, 45, of Manila, Ark.

Mrs. Christos and a passenger in her car, Lillie Ramey, 79, were taken to Dunklin County Memorial Hospital in Kennett. Mrs. Ramey was transferred to Community Methodist Hospital in Paragould, Ark.

According to the patrol's accident report, Willie G. Woodard, 43, fell asleep at the wheel of his tractor-trailer truck, which ran off the road and struck a parked car.

Woodard was seriously injured. A passenger, Dorman Monroe, 24, of Steele also was injured, but the extent of his injuries were not determined. Both were taken to Southeast Missouri Hospital in Cape Girardeau.

MODERNIZING FATHER TIME

The early part of the year many individuals' fancy turns to Daylight Savings. A West Virginia teacher advocates, in addition to taking liberties with the clocks, we do the same with the calendar.

When the end of February arrives, if we set the calendar ahead and skip a month, you not only enter the spring season of April ahead of time but escape the Ides and other perils of March as well. This brings vacation a month earlier. Then to prolong this state of bliss and keep the equinox and other functions of the sun in their proper relation, when we reach the end of August, the calendar is set back and we relive this month a second time.

Perhaps the greatest shock to many working people is that the nation's Social Security system is due for a drastic overhaul soon.

According to reports, new studies show the fund will run into the red before long, unless there's either a cut in benefits or an increase in contributions.

U. S. News & World Report comments that inflation is one reason, while another is the declining birth rate which projects that the number of workers paying S.S. taxes will shrink in proportion to the number of retired persons.

While maximum payroll taxes on employers and workers have nearly doubled in only three years, it could easily increase another third by 1978. That is, if the taxpayers will stand hitched for a higher S. S. deduction from the paycheck.

But he saw no goals. In that segment of his life which lay within his vision, he saw no great, gaping spaces which yawned for a man of deeds to come and fill. He saw no mighty rivers to span. He saw no unexplored regions to conquer. He saw no ravening monsters to challenge his prowess. He saw only people, little people, who blocked his view.

So the youth stood aloof. Frustrated and despondent, he sought a sage to whom he made his confession. "I want to do big things — great things!" He said, trembling with passionate zeal, "but I can see and think only of little things — the little comings and goings of the lives of little people. I am surrounded by littleness. Tell me how to train my vision so I can see great purpose in the offing."

The old philosopher smiled an indulgent smile. "Continue to see little things, young man," he said. "Observe them diligently; fill your soul with their littleness, and out of your earnest concern will grow the mighty things which you desire."

Pigeons were once so numerous in the United States that they were a manace to crops, and a constant source of annoyance to farmers. One method of getting rid of them was to catch a pigeon and fasten it to a "call stool" in the field. When the other pigeons flocked around the decoy, it was easy enough to trap them. From this practice we have derived our expression, "stool pigeon."

THE POT AND THE KETTLE

From The University News St. Louis University

"This Administration has proved that it is utterly incapable of cleaning out the corruption which has completely eroded it and re-establishing the confidence and faith of the people in the morality and honesty of their Government employes. The investigations which have been conducted to date ... have only scratched the surface. For every case which is exposed, there are 10 which are successfully covered up and even then this Administration will go down in history as the 'scandal-a-day Administration."

"It is typical of the morals standards of the Administration that when they are caught red-handed with payoff money in their bank accounts the best defense they can give is that they won the money in a poker game, a crap game, or by hitting the daily double.

"A new class of royalty has been created in the United States and its princes of privileges and payoffs include the racketeers who get concessions on their income tax cases, the insiders who get favorite treatment on Government contracts, the influence peddlers with keys to the White House, the Government employe who uses his position to feather his nest. The great tragedy, however, is not that corruption exists but that it is defended and condoned by the President and other high Administration officials. We have had corruption defended by those in high places. If they won't recognize or admit that corruption exists, how can we expect them to clean it up?"

DOGGONE IT!

A growing number of urban American dog owners are taking the trouble to scoop up after their pets during their daily and nightly walks - a socially considerate act prompted by a need for improved street sanitation. But not so long ago, the same act in Old World cities, done by professional searchers carrying pails, was equivalent to picking up money. Dog dung, during several centuries, ranked as the most valuable of all animal wastes. It was a commodity much in demand for curing fine leather. Its use had spread to Europe from the Near East after the Middle Ages. The Truks made good leather with dog dung and Constantinople, a be- kind - to - animals city, sheltered lots of dogs whose output created an exportable surplus. Big cargoes of it went to western Europe and later the United States. During the 19th century, tanners in England developed a self- help trade. British dogs were producing, and the occupation described as "finder of the pure" was encouraged among the working class.

Pure, sometimes spelled puer, was the commodity's industrial name, adapted from French purin, manure. Men and women trudged through streets picking up dog droppings to sell for a shilling a bucketful. Finally, beginning around 1900, scientific analysis revealed that the working ingredients of dung were a class of fermenting chemical compounds called enzymes. Within living memory, substitution of clean synthetic chemicals for "pure" wrought a great, silent — and welcome — revolution in the leather industry. Regrettably, dog drippings now aren't worth a cent, and can't even be given away.

THE SAGA OF DIZ

The death of Dizzy Dean closed a chapter on individualism. He was known to millions for his antics on the baseball field and in front of a microphone. Diz was a great performer when he was on the pitching mound. He was an entertainer when he was behind the microphone. Above all, he was a product of the American system of enterprise. Diz said he had a strong right arm and a weak mind. We agree only with the first part of the statement. He had the mind and the determination to rise to the top in his chosen occupation and he reached the summit in baseball despite his humble beginnings on a farm in Arkansas.

The strong right arm was not a natural gift, Diz would say. He developed it first by throwing rocks and then throwing a baseball. He went on to set records in major league baseball and only an unfortunate incident in an All-Star game cut short his career and denied him other records. Dean was not content to rest on his records. He entered the field of broadcast and it is doubtful that there ever was a more popular sports announcer. Again, the enterprise in him was at work.

Diz could make us laugh. He could help us enjoy baseball. He became a part of the American scene and was admired by Presidents as well as the kids whose baseballs he was always happy to autograph. Dizzy Dean set records on the field of baseball and he set records in other fields, too. He knew how to laugh. He knew how to work. Perhaps work and a sense of humor were the key ingredients in his greatness.

A DO-NOTHING EXECUTIVE

WASHINGTON - The thrust of President Nixon's new economic policy is to do nothing. The Administration's economic advisers have decided that, except for blaming the American people for inflation, it would be much wiser just to sit out the economic storms swirling around the nation and see what happens.

The director of the Economic Office of Doing Nothing is Mr. Chauncey Armageddon and, since he doesn't have much to do, he very kindly agreed to see me in the Executive Office Building of the White House.

When I walked into his office he was making paper airplanes from economic reports and sailing them across the room.

"Mr. Armageddon, you must have one of the toughest jobs in the Administration."

"I should hope so," he said. "It isn't easy to do nothing about an economic crisis of this proportion. But, fortunately, I've got the full backing of the President. I also have managed to put together an excellent staff of economists who believe in a laissez- faire philosophy."

"What do you do?" I asked.

"I beg your pardon?"

"How do you do nothing about the economy?"

"Oh," Armageddon chuckled, "I get you. Well, we do a lot of things. Our main function is to prevent other people in the government from doing anything. For example, when a report comes out that the cost of living has gone up, we immediately contact the departments of Commerce and Agriculture and tell them to do nothing about it. If we see unemployment rising, we call in the Labor people and explain to them why it would be better to ignore it."

"How do you feel about high interest rates?"

"We feel very strongly about them. That's why we're not doing anything about them."

"What's your position on two-digit inflation?"

"The President is very concerned about two-digit inflation, and he has instructed us to make it one of the highest priorities. He told me personally that if we do nothing about anything it has to be inflation."

"I imagine your office also concerns itself with tax reform."

"We certainly do. If you have tax reform you'll be setting economic forces to work that no one will be able to control. The Administration's position is that if we don't do anything about tax reform we will have made a major accomplishment toward the fight for a stable economy."

"Mr. Armageddon, is there any point that you could foresee where the President might have to do something about the economic state of the country?"

"I can't see anything on the horizon. If we produce more and buy less, then the marketplace will take care of itself. The key to a strong economy is the public's confidence in its leaders.

"Since President Nixon has the confidence of the country, and they know he has neither the time nor the intention of doing anything, the American people will solve their own problems, which is the way it should be. Nobody wants a President to tell him what to do when it comes to such personal matters as inflation, high prices and unemployment."

"Your phone is ringing," I said to Armageddon.

"I know, but I'm not going to answer it," he replied.

"Why not?"

"It might be somebody who wants me to do something about an economic problem, and if I don't take the call I won't have to do anything about it."

Washington-Merry-Go-Round

by Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON - Tens of thousands of vacationers have been unable to reserve campsites at 21 national parks this summer because the telephone reservation system was handled by an inexperienced firm.

The contract was awarded to Park Reservation System, which was incorporated in Claremont, Calif., on June 7 and began operations on June 23.

By a curious coincidence, the firm's president, L. Donald Middleton, happens to be a close friend of National Parks Director Ronald Walker. Spokesmen for both men deny that their friendship influenced the deal.

It is a fact, nevertheless, that the company was organized for the sole purpose of handling the camping reservations contract. The executives of the new company had no real experience in the field.

Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, a member of the Senate Parks subcommittee, asked the General Accounting Office to investigate the firm's performance. Here are the preliminary findings:

-- One day, 25,000 of 29,464 callers got only a busy signal. A spot check by GAO investigators on July 18 disclosed that only one out of every 20 calls got through the reservations switchboard.

-- Although the firm had raked in about $150,000 in reservations from campers by mid-July, it still hadn't posted the $100,000 performance bond required to protect the government's take.

-- The Park Service, after promising "virtually instantaneous" service for campers, has now called upon them to make their reservations by cards and letters. This slow service will be too late for many vacationers.

-- The Park Service has conceded, as a result of the foul-up, that "most parks are still receiving a fairly small number of reservations. . . resulting in many campgrounds no more than 10 to 15 per cent filled."

Nevertheless, the Park Service has extended the contract into August.

Footnote: Clark Powell, executive vice president of the embattled reservations firm, defended its operation as "the greatest thing since sex, if they give us a chance to the end of the year."

SAVED BY SAM: President Nixon's closest crony, Bebe Rebozo, excaped a possible contempt citation only through the personal action of kindly old Senate Watergate Chairman Sam Ervin, D-N.C.

As one of the committee's last acts, Ervin subpoenaed Rebobo's financial, telephone and other records. But the secretive Rebozo resisted bitterly, even going to court to fight the subpoena.

The showdown came behind the closed doors of Ervin's spacious Capitol hideaway. Rebozo sat by silently while his Miami attorney, William Frates, assailed the Watergate staff for harassing his client.

The angry lawyer charged that Rebozo had been questioned repeatedly, that his bank had been pawed through, that unfavorable secret testimony had been leaked to the press. Once lawmen rushed to Rebozo's Key Biscayne, Fla., bank to investigate a report that two suspicious men were casing it for a robbery. The two suspects turned out to be Watergate investigators.

At one point, Frates reportedly refused to negotiate if committee investigator Scott Armstrong was in the room. A general hubbub developed after co-chairman Howard Baker, R-Tenn., joined in the attack upon committee counsel Terry Lenzner.

Ervin restored order and twice sent the staff into a smaller hideaway belonging to Sen. Dan Inouye, D-Hawaii, to work out an agreement. The negotiations dragged on until the staffers and Frates, their nerves raw, fell into bitter dispute. As two witnesses recall it, Frates called Armstrong a "rat fink." But minority counsel Fred Thompson and Lenzner finally reached an accord with Frates, who agreed to provide substantial material from Rebozo's files.

Meeting again with the senators, Frates agreed to sign a letter formalizing the accord. But first, he had to meet with the Watergate prosecutors, he said, promising he would be back.

That was the last they saw of him. Instead of returning to Capitol Hill, he flew to Miami. A committee staffer was dispatched to Miami, but Frates refused to give up the promised material, complaining that still more damaging material had been leaked to the press.

Despite the runaround, Ervin let the contempt question die at a final meeting. The old constitutionalist explained to us that it was true "we were promised" the Rebozo material and "we didn't get it." But he said the committee was going out of business and "the Justice Department would have had to enforce the subpoena."

Concluded Ervin: "I have never favored contempt proceedings."

Footnote: My associate Les Whitten reached Frates in Miami. He attacked our column, refused to listen to the questions and hung up on Whitten. Frates' friends said he was honestly disturbed by the news leaks and acted in what he considered the best interest of his client.

WASHINGTON WHIRL: Rumors have persisted for almost a month that Vice President Gerald Ford has secretly asked former Att. Gen. Elliot Richardson to become Vice President if President Nixon is forced out of office. Both men deny it. But Richardson is making the grand tour of Moscow and other points, in the manner of men with an eye on high office. . . . The U.S. Information Agency must know something we don't. It's working busily on a film explaining to foreign lands how an American president comes to be removed from office. A rough-cut version of the movie shows President Nixon in his historic talks with world leaders and then portrays him caught in the impeachment process. At USIA, a spokesman said the final version won't be completed until after the President's fate is decided one way or the other. . . . Watergate is not President Nixon's only legal problem. Some 50 civil suits have been filed against him in federal courts, four times more than were filed against the late Lyndon Johnson. Although a few are Watergate- related, most are filed by individuals seeking redress from real or imagined ills. The Justice Department, as it has always done, handles the suits.

Is Justice Dead?
Attorney General Reports His Department Is Cracklingly Alive

I'm a Justice Department buff. Which is why I was doubly distressed, as I wondered around Washington, to hear some wit hum, "Yes, we have no government today." Thus, I turned to Atty. Gen. Saxbe and asked just what has happened to the 50,000-man (and woman) department on which so much of this nation's freedom rests. Here is his reply, written exclusively for this column:

By William B. Saxbe
Attorney General of the United States

WASHINGTON — As a United States Senator on his way to becoming the fourth Attorney General of the Nixon administration, I was somewhat apprehensive as I sifted through the mountain of commentary last winter which suggested that the Department of Justice was in an absolute shambles.

Certain facts seemed to support the view of these Cassandras that the Department had been ravaged by Watergate's upheavals.

Within a span of 18 months, there had been three Attorneys General. Grave allegations had been leveled at former high officials of Justice. A special prosecutor had been fired. Some observers felt that the department had fallen victim to a savage erosion of the spirit.

You can imagine my delight at finding the gray sandstone walls of the department still standing and its red tile roof still firmly intact when I arrived last January.

And as the ensuing months unfolded, I came face to face with some challenging facts about the department's personnel.

Like the public at large, most were dismayed over what had been admitted, alleged, or charged in Watergate. But if anything, it was a more intensive reaction. For what all of the department's employees have in common - from the messenger to the legal scholar - is a share of the work in an enterprise designed to uphold the law and do it fairly.

I also began to detect a sense of anger.

When Watergate detonated, many in the public began to look upon Justice employees with a broad- brush view: first, they had somehow been lax in their official responsibilities, and, second, subsequently so demoralized the department no longer functioned.

There are undoubtedly some whose morale was impaired. But the overwhelming bulk of the 50,000 employees felt an indignation which continued to move the department forward even in the worst of times. These men and women seem to me determined to do vital jobs with skill and efficiency - no matter what the obstacles may be.

However, since such judgments are subjective, let me cite a few examples to support my belief that the department is functioning, and functioning well.

Earlier this year, the FBI reported that in 1973 more than 1,250 persons were convicted in the organized crime field - a sharp increase over 1972.

The department's Organized Crime Strike Forces obtained 285 indictments against 654 persons in a recent nine-month period. In the past year, 16 organized crime leaders have been convicted.

Civil rights statutes are being enforced vigorously. A record number of cases were filed in 1973, including employment discrimination suits against the steel and trucking industries. The steel case brought a back- pay award of $31 million. And another record number of cases will be filed this year.

The conviction rate in cases brought by the Tax Division remains at an exceptional 90 per cent.

The Antitrust Division, which has brought several key cases for alleged bid-rigging and recently set up a new unit to investigate the energy field, is adding 83 positions to its roster, the largest staff increase in two decades.

Streamlined operations by the Drug Enforcement Administration promise to make major inroads in an immense problem. DEA agents and Mexican police recently made the largest marihuana seizure in history - 42 tons - which had a street sale value of $22.8 million.

The Land and Natural Resources Division has begun an ambitious program to better protect the nation's wetlands - a fragile, irreplaceable link in the ecology - and is continuing to enforce federal laws to protect the environment.

Funding approaching $900 million a year is flowing from the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration to help state and local governments combat crime.

The Federal Bureau of Prisons is building six new institutions to moderize and improve its programs. The bureau recently reported that two-thirds of the inmates released in 1970 had adjusted successfully - a much higher rate than generally believed possible.

And the list could go on and on, but space limitations preclude more than a brief glimpse of the mere tip of the Department's extensive, overall efforts.

By citing those activities, I do not suggest even remotely that, as Attorney General, I deserve all the credit. The full credit belongs to the department's employees.

My six months on the job have represented, in part, a learning process. I have announced some new programs, among them: creation of cargo theft teams in 15 major cities; expansion of federal- state- local law-envorcement committees to bring more resources to bear against crime; stepped- up training for our attorneys; efforts to enhance the career service; more vigorous antitrust enforcement which will, in part, help combat inflation.

A number of other efforts also are being developed. Each is designed to help make the department more effective in carrying out all of its responsibilities.

How well we do depends mostly on us, but also partly on public support. It is difficult to accurately assess public perception of the department, but there are a few yardsticks.

One is something we call the Honors Program by which we attract the highest- ranking law school graduates to the department. This year, more than 2,500 applied - compared to 2,000 in 1973.

Perhaps another is the remarkable number of persons who tour FBI facilities in the department - about 3,000 a day during the tourist season. The flow is unabated from pre-Watergate days.

As they queue up for the tour, many glance at words uttered long ago by Daniel Webster that are chiseled in stones which adorn the building: "Justice is the great interest of man on earth. Where ever her temple stands there is a foundation for social security, general happiness, and the improvement and progress of our race."

The men and women of the department take that challenge very seriously

Council hires dispatcher

DEXTER - The City Council Monday night hired George Hunsaker as city dispatcher to replace Bud Cravens, who recently resigned.

The council met an hour ahead of schedule to permit Mayor Willis Conner to attend a dinner in honor of Jack Pritchard at 7:30 p.m. at the Hickory Log Restaurant. The event climaxed Jack Pritchard Day in Dexter. Pritchard, a Dexter resident, recently retired after many years of service with the Missouri State Highway Patrol.

In other action, the council voted to issue special tax bills for the paving of Poplar, Lewis and Alice streets and to renew licenses for Joe Hunter Plumbing and Heating and McMullin Excavating Co. A merchants and beer license also was renewed for Pizza Villa.

Installation of a trophy case in the city administration building to house baseball trophies also was approved.

Topics discussed and tabled included the removal of the streets in West City Park. The park board recommended that the streets be graded and planted in grass since ample parking exists on the street bordering the park. The board believes the absence of streets through the park will make the park safer for children.

Terry Hawes of C. R. Trotter and Associates told the council that a bid received for the new sewer district in the Dexter Creek Park area has been increased considerably since it was received in 1973. Property owners will be notified of the increase before the city decides on several alternatives.

First arrest made under burning law

Police made the first arrest Monday under the city's open burning law when they arrested Rodney Bridger for burning trash at Bridger Implement Co. on East Malone Avenue.

Other arrests included: Donna Lee Mason, 313 Sunset Drive, stealing over $50; Cathy Jean Young, 225 S. Main St., petit larceny; and Terry Gene Brown, 414 Wilson St., destroying city property.

Burglars hit Advance store

ADVANCE — Cameron's Store near here was burglarized Monday night, according to Stoddard County Sheriff Ralph Mouser who said details of the burglary were not available.

When someone spends thirty years reminding people to be careful with fire, and he does it for no other reason than to save our forests, he makes a lot of friends.

BE CAUTIOUS WITH DEEDS

Probably the deed to your property is filed away, all but forgotten. Probably you've never checked it since the day it served to pass title from the previous owner to you. Perhaps you didn't even check it then. There may have been no urgent reason to. Nevertheless, an apparently secure deed can turn out to be a worthless piece of paper.

For instance, suppose the deed states the name of the seller, but doesn't contain his signature? Suppose the seller was under 21? Suppose the seller died before you received the deed? Suppose there's a n error in the way the deed describes the property?

Any of these defects - as well as many others - could make your deed invalid. But defective deeds are the exception, not the rule, so don't be frightened. Just be cautious. And the best way to be cautious is to deal with a reputable real estate professional and a knowledgeable real estate lawyer.

Risco native explores Holy Land

By PAT LANDERS
Risco Correspondent

Because of Israel's exciting past, many who have read and dreamed about the places of Biblical background desire to see them, and such a trip to the Holy Land became a reality recently for Miss Debbie Blough of Risco, who spent six weeks this summer working and touring that area.

Miss Blough, a student at Southwest Missouri State University at Springfield, Mo., was one of the 25 students from three educational institutions who participated in archaeological excavatons at Khirget -Raddana,which is 10 miles north of Jerusalem. The group was under the field supervision of Dr. Robert Cooley of Springfield.

The main purpose of the trip was excavation of the Israeli village, where discoveries have led to the belief that the inhabitants of that area were agriculturists. Interesting architectural information has been formulated on domestic buildings during the Iron Age I. Destructive evidence has recently been discovered which indicates the fierceness of the tribal war against Benjamin, which is recorded in the Bible (Judges 19 -21).

Among the artifacts uncovered during the summer's diggings were three bronze rings, three incense burners, some whorls (possibly used for spinning cloth), various unusual cups, flints, sickle blades and saddle kern grinding stones (probably used in agriculture), and ivory awl used for punching holes, and iron spear point which may have a type of inscription and several slingstones apparently used in wars.

Most of these items have not yet been fully evaluated by archaeologists.

While in Israel Miss Blough completed six hours of study in sociology, including Old World Field Methods in Archaeology, Regional Anthroplogy I and two other hours in an independent study of Religion.

Students in her group spent three days a week in their archaeological diggings, two days a week were spent touring and their two -day weekends were usually free for their individual pursuits.

Because Israel is a center for three of the world's main religions, Judaism, Christianity and Islamism (Moslemism), it provides excellent and unique tourism attraction. Pilgrims from all over the world come to visit the holy sites there.

Although many of the Jews do not hold sacred the holy sites of Christianity and Islamism, they have taken great care in preserving and protecting these sites.

One of the first intriguing visits of the students was to a community of tent -dwellers made up of Moslem Arabs whose main occupation is herding, but who in more recent times have begun farming. Another segment of Moslems are village dwellers who are farmers and craftsman , and a third segment is made up of persons from towns who usually hold more skilled -type jobs.

Other points of interest on the trip included the viewing of Aaron's tomb at Petra, swimming in the Sea of Galilee at Tiberius and viewing the Mount of the Beatitudes.

The group spent two days in a village community kibbutz, an incorporated cooperative enterprise, which has its own general assembly to govern them. The basic ideal is equality among its members.

Each person receives from the kibbutz according to his needs and contributes to the kibbutz according to his own abilities. Members are usually provided meals in a communal dining hall and receive medical care, education for the children, a type of social security for those no longer able to work and various other needs of daily living, which vary from one kibbutz to another.

Although the kibbutz is usually agricultural, some have industrial interests as well.

At Engedi, the tourists were shown the place where David and his army are said to have hid from Saul (I Samuel 23:29). They also visited the site of the finding of the Dead Sea Scrolls at the caves of Qumran, and later relaxed at Eilat, where there is a resort on the Red Sea.

During her stay in Israel Miss Blough made certain observations and studies of the state, especially in regard to the traditional life of the Israelites.

Misss Blough comments that in Jerusalem the weather was usually quite comfortable with a breeze blowing in from the Meditteranean Sea, but in Jericho and Eilat it sometimes becomes hot and humid.

The group spent the majority of their time in West Bank (occupied territory since the Six -Day War in 1967), so they were in comparatively close contact with the Arabs. Three Arabs were hired to assist the group in their archaeological work.

It is said that most of the people speak more than one language and some as many as four or five. This makes communication with residents no problem. Various languages spoken there may include Italian, Spanish, French, English, Hebrew and Arabic.

The Arabs, making up about one -fourth of Israel's population of some four million, are apparently friendly with people of our western world, in spite of any supposed propoganda against them. Most of the Moslems have remained traditional in some attitudes and may be offended by the improper dress of some tourists.

It is said that Israel has the highest taxes in the world, and that every bit of the tax money is needed and used --much of it being spent in developing military defense arms. Taxes are received mainly from income, with some received indirectly from imports.

Three things are said to unify the Israeli citizens in spite of their differing cultural backgrounds. They are:

Education by government schools, where state law requires education for the first six years. Higher education is encouraged to all, with government examinations given at the end of the sixth, ninth, and 12th years of study to decide which pupils are good candidates for higher learning.

The Hebrew national language in which the first six years of school are taught.

The army, which is no respecter of persons, Every able man, beginning at age 18, serves for three years in the forces and remains in reserves until age 55. Women, also, begin serving for 20 months at age 18 and remain in reserves until age 34.

An especially interesting topic to Miss Blough was the role of women in Israel, The liberation of women there has been a difficult task hampered by the traditional habits practiced in various communities. Social changes apparently come slowly.

The Women's Equal Rights Law of 1951 makes unilateral divorce against the will of the wife illegal. Woman can also now own property and have equal legal status regarding the guardianship of their children. Child marriage has been abolished and girls became subject to compulsory education.

The Equal Pay for Equal Work Law of 1964 has also been a great contribution to women's equality. However, the every day practice of the laws will depend upon attitudes of the individual community.

There is still a degree of selective discrimination against women in the area of marriage and divorce. Israelites are under the jurisdication of the religious courts, where Rabbinical Law states that divorce must be given by the husband, and the wife cannot give a divorce even in the case of her husband abandoning the family.

Recently, however, liberal interpretations of laws allow some wives to remarry if the missing husband is presumed dead.

Other traditional ways have kept the women of Israel under the authority of her husband. These include the practice of women not sitting at the dinner table until the males of the family are finished eating, not leaving the house without the permission of the husband and women walking behind the man rather than at his side.

Seemingly, the major things affecting the status of Israeli women are abolishment of polygamy, establishment of free compulsory public education from age 5 to 14 and the establishment of a minimum marriage age of 17 years.

Choosing one's own husband rather than marrying the one chosen by the parents is a recent change. Traditionally, however, the bride and her husband seldom spoke to each other before the wedding.

The appearance of gas stoves, electric refrigerators and hot water heaters in many Oriental and Arabic homes is an indicaiton of the changes that have taken place in the last 20 years. These new standards for women may often conflict with the old standards, but the new standards are apparently here to stay.

Antique souvenirs

Debbie Blough of Risco displays souvenirs of her summer travels to the Holy Land, including archaeological antiquities from Jerusalem which are believed to be from the time of Abraham, David and Christ. The bronze pot is from Egypt.

Cool toppers for summer feature bare shoulder look

NEW YORK (ED)—This summer the fashion spotlight focuses on shoulder-revealing styles. Halters, tubes, tank tops and skinny little t-shirts all combine to highlight a wardrobe of cool, carefree summer clothes.

One of the newest bare shoulder styles is the do-it-yourself halter top—a colorful scarf that you tie bandeau-style and wear with long, swirling big skirts. For an added sense of security, the scarf can be tied around the neck like a halter. Another idea for a cool topper is the lowly t-shirt—dressed up with embroidery, sequins, appliques, ribbons and lace and worn over a long, silky skirt.

This summer the camisole tops of grandmother's day are coming out from under blouses to team up with shorts and jeans. White peasant blouses pushed down to bare the shoulders look crisp and feminine for lazy summer afternoons. And, the nostalgia craze has given rebirth to those marvelous sundresses reminiscent of the 30's and 40's.

With all the variety in your summer wardrobe, don't let the sun play tricks with strap marks. Play it smart and include a tan corrector

You can erase your bathing suit strap marks before slipping into that strapless dress.

The look for summer is cool and comfortable with lots of toasty tanned skin to show off those marvelous new tops.

Sweet corn has fascinating history

By DR. L. M. HURSH
National Dairy
Council Consultant

I like corn on the cob so much that I'd like to write about it more than once a year. But they tell me that would be overdoing it so I wait each year until now.

Fresh sweet corn is, to my taste, one of the great delicacies. It also occupies a central role in the development of America and the rural life that I experienced when growing up in Minnesota.

So let's talk about corn and how delightful it is again this summer as one of the great blessings we receive from the harvest season. Boiled or roasted, and with melted butter and salt, corn is one of the foods everybody in the family enjoys.

Have we always had corn? It has a fascinating history.

What Experts Say

According to experts such as G. F. Sprague of the U. S. Department of Agriculture and John R. Edwardson of the University of Florida, corn probably originated in tropical South America. Botanically it is an annual plant of the grass family. It is the most important cereal in the Western Hemisphere. Only wheat and rice exceed corn on a world crop basis.

Food semantics can sometimes be confusing. For example, in Britain and continental Europe the word "corn" has been used for centuries to mean any of the small- seed cereals such as barley, wheat and rye. "Maize" is, of course, a worldwide specific term for the several varieties of corn we are really talking about.

Which leads me back to the Americas and ancient times. Wild corn is believed to have existed as early as 80,000 years ago. Somewhere along the line the word "maize" was coined to describe corn.

The difference between wild corn (which has not existed for centuries) and our domestic variety was one of size and particularly of ability to reproduce. In wild corn, when the plant was mature, the husks opened to permit the wild corn seed to be released. In other words, it could reproduce itself. In modern corn, the husks must be opened manually or by machine to free the seeds.

Early Corn Fragments

Reconstruction of early corn fragments found in Mexican caves indicates the wild corn cobs were less than an inch long, and that they had an average 55 small seeds or kernels, arranged in pairs, usually in eight rows. In contrast with today's corn (which has large ears borne low on the stalk), wild corn ears were probably borne high on short-stalked plants.

So wild corn pretty well perpetuated itself. Today, to reproduce corn, man must remove the seed from the ear, plant the seed.

Salt is essential to human life

By DR. L. M. HURSH
National Dairy
Council Consultant

Salt? We wouldn't want to live without it. We couldn't live without it. Salt is a constituent of seawater, of the soil, of plants and of every living cell and tissue.

And we all remember reading in our history books that wars have even been fought over salt. We not only need it nutritionally but in ancient times, in particular, it was the means of preserving precious food. Civilizations were built on salt's availability.

The proper exchange of salt in the human body between blood and tissues is essential to life. The impairment of this process interferes with the proper fluid content of the tissues and with the electrical components of the tissues functions. When something goes wrong with the handling of salt in the body, there is serious trouble.

A seasoning favorite

Thus there is no more vital element in human physiology than ordinary table salt — sodium chloride.

Salt is, of course, also a great favorite because it is a seasoning that brings out the flavor of other ingredients in our food. And some salt is naturally present in food, in varying amounts.

Food from animal sources, including meat, fish, poultry, milk and cheese, contain more sodium than do foods from plant sources. Foods from the sea are, of course, higher in sodium than fresh water fish.

Which brings us to warm weather and the belief that is circulated each summer that extra salt is needed when people work or exercise and perspire a great deal.

Diet Gives You Enough

Actually, the ordinary American diet provides sufficient salt for an adult to survive even the most vigorous sweating as long as his intake of water is maintained. Survival research in the Army, in which I have personally been involved, has proven that soldiers do not need things such as salt tablets, but they do have to drink sufficient liquids.

Tolerance to hot weather develops in seven to 10 days. Your body adjusts and the amount of salt you lose in sweat becomes less. Similarly, your appetite for water increases.

So, as a seasoning, let's use salt sensibly, eh? And if you have a special medical problem for which you should limit your use of salt, your doctor will tell you.

At the grocery store you can purchase either iodized or plain salt. I recommend iodized.

Without today's widespread use of iodized salt we would probably return to the high incidency of goiter that used to exist, especially in the middle west, some 50 years ago, before iodized salt was introduced to the market.

THE FAR SIDE OF PARADISE by Arthur A. Mizener 19604 - $1.50 - Biography

Arthur Mizener's biography of F. Scott Fitzgerald provides a definitive portrait of the man, his life, his work, and the legend he helped to make. Fitzgeral always wrote about people and things with which he was intimate. His own colorful life, his marriage to Zelda, were often reflected in his work. A person of great charm and influence, he lived in and wrote of upper middle class America in the 1920s, a time proving to be a turning point in the history of American culture. F. Scott Fitzgerald began his career with This Side of Paradise.

Legal secretaries have July meeting

The Cape Girardeau, Mississippi and Scott County Legal Secretaries Association met Thursday night in the Security Federal Savings and Loan Association community room, with Mrs. Bonnie Noles serving as hostess.

A brief report was given by Mrs. Ida Phillips on the upcoming legal seminar which will be held in late September.

Plans are being formulate; for the state convention, which will be held in Cape Girardeau in May, with Iron and St. Francois counties acting as host and the Cape Girardeau, Mississippi and Scott County Association as co-host.

Anne Elliott, owner of the Raggedy Anne Shop in Sikeston, presented an informative program on arts and crafts, including decoupage, various ways items such as an ordinary soft- drink case can be changed into a decorative object, how a plain canning jar, plus a little imagination, can become a quaint flower vase for a three- dimensional picture for various parts of the home and the use of oils and paints.

A variety of different craft items was shown.

At the close of the meeting, refreshments were served by Mrs. Noles.

The August meeting will be held in Jackson, with Mrs. Lillian Godwin as hostess.

Ann Landers

Ecumenical prayers best

Dear Ann Landers: I am a Jewish widower who has been keeping steady company with a charming Protestant divorcee. We have agreed that the differences in religion will not be a divisive factor in our relationship. We are mature, liberal thinkers and each of us respects the rights of the other to hold the religious beliefs we were reared with.

Recently we had dinner at the home of my fiancee's close friends. Her grown children were present. Grace was said before the meal. The prayer was offered in the name of Jesus Christ, whom I have always accepted as a learned rabbi and teacher, but not as a deity. I have been present at public gatherings when prayers have been invoked in the name of Jesus and have always felt uncomfortable.

I believe prayers should be ecumenical in content when people of different faiths gather. In your opinion would it be best to remain silent on such occasions and consider it a thoughtless gesture? Or should I tell my fiancee how I feel and ask her to inform the host ahead of time so similar discomfort can be avoided in the future? -- Unsure

Dear U.: An ecumenical prayer is, of course, in much better taste when members of a variety of faiths are present, but it is in bad taste to tell others how to pray in their homes.

I have been the guest speaker at many luncheons and dinners when pork has been served and grace was offered in the name of Jesus. So I eat the salad and vegetables and silently say a Hebrew blessing. At our dinner table, however, when guests are present, we join hands around the table and the prayer I offer is always ecumenical.

Dear Ann Landers: I am still burning over your rotten advice to the young girl whose mother read her diary. You said, in effect, "Don't write anything that might create problems for yourself or others."

When a woman wrote to ask, "What can I do about my children wandering into my bedroom at night?" you did not say, "Don't do anything in the bedroom at night that you wouldn't do in the living room at noon." You replied, "Put a lock on the door." Nowadays, even the youngest child can scrape up enough money to buy a good padlock for a little trunk to put his diary in. And he can wear the key around his neck. Get with it! - Freemartin

Dear Mart: Nonsense. If a nosy unconscionable mother wants to get into a trunk or whatever, she'll find a way. And such a mother would be more inclined to do so if she noticed the child was going to a great deal of trouble to be secretive. She would probably tell herself, "He must be doing something very bad and I must find out what it is for his own good." This of course is shabby rationalizing but many mothers resort to it. So maybe YOU'D better get with it.

Dear Ann Landers: Our family has moved 14 times in the past six years. We always leave a forwarding address and I'm beginning to wonder if it's a good idea.

I've had letters from former neighbors and acquaintances whose names I can scarcely remember. They want to correspond and have even suggested that we visit them. Should I respond or would it be best to ignore the letters? -- Gypsie

Dear G: To ignore such well- meaning friends would be extremely callous. Simply write a friendly, noncommital note. Say you were flattered to have been remembered and you hope to see them again sometime.

Rookies look promising

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Five rookies made their respective coaches forget about striking National Football League veterans Monday night during Kansas City's 20-12 exhibition victory over the Detroit Lions.

The five are quarterback Dave Jaynes and running backs Woody Green and Tony Grisby, all of the victorious Chiefs, and running backs Dexter Bussey and David Wooley, both Detroit hopefuls.

Jaynes, an All-American from Kansas, floated a 46-yard touchdown pass to Craig Clark, Utah State rookie, the first time he threw the ball, capping a 76-yard drive with the opening kickoff. Grisby, from Bethune-Cookman, ripped through for a seven-yard touchdown and led the Chiefs runners with 74 yards on 12 carries.

Green, the Arizona State Flash, contributed vital yardage to Kansas City's two first half touchdowns, averaging 4.2 yards per thrust. He wound up with 38 yards on 15 tries.

Bussey, formerly the pride of Texas Arlington, stabbed one yard for Detroit's lone touchdown. Wooley picked up 38 yards on 15 carries.

"We knew Green was great," said Detroit Coach Rick Forzano. "We saw him at the Senior Bowl, and Jaynes was quite impressive. We were also quite impressed with Bussey and Wooley."

Hank Stram, the Chiefs coach, asserted that Grisby "was most impressive at the start of the game." Griby gained 30 yards carrying the ball on the Chiefs' first five plays.

Rookie Efren Herrera of UCLA kicked field goals of 32 and 28 yards for the Lions. Robert Currier, a Pudget Sound rookie, booted a 22-yarder and rookie George Jakawenko of Syracuse a 34-yarder for the Chiefs, who led 17-3 at halftime.

Rookies and free agents — plus four veterans on each team — played this opening game for both clubs before a crowd of 35,521. Chiefs officials had to make refunds to 8,000. A year ago, 67,216 saw Kansas City's first home game against New Orleans.

Chiefs veterans picketed outside the stadium during the contest, displaying signs and distributing literature charging NFL club owners with "failure to barain in good faith" and "issuing false propaganda."

Chiefs owner Lamar Hunt got into the wrong lane at gate No. 1 where wide receiver Otis Taylor and running back Ed Podolak were on picket duty.

"Hey, Lamar," Taylor shouted, "even you can't get through the red tape."

Hunt laughed as he pulled into the proper lane.

Podolak shoved one of the strike circulars toward Hunt's car window and said:

"Want to learn what's going on, Lamar?"

Hunt drove away without taking it.

Cardinals hold two-game lead over Phillies

ST. LOUIS (AP) — If the Philadelphia Phillies stumble in baseball's National League East, it will probably be due to chronic problems in the bullpen.

Manager Danny Ozark acknowledged as much Monday night but also conceded perplexity as to how to fill the club's most pressing need.

"It sure won't come from a contending club," he said of the help the Phils are seeking following a 3-2 loss in 13 innings to the St. Louis Cardinals.

"How do you compensate?" he mused. "You do it by getting more runs. We need four or five runs to get us into the late innings."

Ozarks' Phillies, falling two games behind the first-place Cards in the chase for the East Division title, were bolstered by 11 strong innings from starting pitcher Wayne Twitchell.

But a Ted Simmons home run, his 14th, ruined the right-hander's shutout bid in the ninth and eventually brought on help that failed.

Pete Richert, 1-1, was tapped for a leadoff double in the 13th by the Cards' Ted Sizemore and Bake McBride was intentionally walked.

That brought on Gene Garber, who walked Simmons purposedly following a wild pickoff attempt, and Joe Torre popped a Garber delivery off the left-center field wall for the winning hit.

"I can't be overly dissatisfied with the way Richert's pitched lately," Ozark said, however, "and even with Garber giving up the base hit. The ball was high. He had to get it over the plate.

"But I don't have that guy out there in the bullpen I'd like to have," the Phils' manager admitted. "If I had, things might be different.'

"We've just to keep getting it," he said of relief provided by Al Brabosky, Rich Folkers and Mike Garman, 3-2, who followed Bob Gibson.

Of 13 games the cards have won in 16 tests since July 19, Hrabosky has picked up the decision three times and Folkers and Hrabosky have been credited with two each.

"They're wonderful," maintained Simmons, the Cards' catcher. "They keep sending up those Ws. The only shame tonight was that Gibson didn't get any credit. He pitched a whale of a ball game."

Ziegenhorn falls to New Hamburg in men's softball

New Hamburg Blues edged Sikeston's Ziegenhorn 3-2 and Oran downed Vanduser 8-1 in men's fast-pitch district tournament action in Oran Monday night.

O. Kern took the win for the Blues relieving R. Dunkin while Chesser was tagged with the loss. Backfish connected for two hits to lead the Blues attack. D. Berger and R. Dunkin also managed hits for New Hamburg.

Don Roberts took the win for Oran, allowing two hits and fanning 10 at the plate in five innings of play. Don Pobst connected for a homer in the third for Vanduser's only hit of the game and Jim Johnson was tagged with the loss.

Tonight's schedule: New Hamburg Blues will meet Bank of Sikeston at 7:30 and Kelso vs. Scott City at 9 p.m.

TENNIS

LOUISVILLE — Jaime Fillol defeated defending champion Manuel Orantes 3-6, 6-4, 6-4 and Guillermo Milas rallied for a 6-4, 1-6, 7-5 victory over Eddie Dibbs to gain the finals of the $100,000 Tennis Pro Classic.

Sikeston Aces top Bloomfield

Sikeston toppled Bloomfield 15-7, Dexter shut out New Madrid 700 and Scott City wallopped Poplar Bluff 13-3 in Little League Aces tournament action Monday night.

Lane led Sikeston's hitting attack with a four for four plate performance. He also connected for two homers to rack up Sikeston's 15 runs.

In other action Chappell showed a two-for-two performance at the plate for Dexter. Only Palmer and Fowler managed hits for New Madrid.

K. Hinkbein and Holder connected for home runs for Scott City in action against Poplar Bluff. S. Hinkbein was two-for-two at the plate and K. Hinkbein and Schott were both three-for-three. Barton managed two of Poplar Bluff's hits and slipped with one of their three runs. Ezell and Privett each connected for one hit for Poplar Bluff.

Missourian gets 40-pound catch; holds fishing record

DONIPHAN — Lovel Hall stands unique in Missouri angling circles. He is the first individual world record holder the state ever has had.

Hall, who snagged a 40-pound buffalo in the Current River Nov. 19, 1971, already was the state record holder, but Field and Stream magazine, which keeps the most authentic list of world fishing records, has recognized Hall's fish as tops in the "caught by any method" category.

Since Hall snagged the fish, it can't be recongized as a hook and line record. That honor apparently goes to Ella Mae Pidima of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, who caught a 36 pound, eight ounce bigmouth buffalo on a nightcrawler.

It was that catch and the knowledge that Hall's fish was larger that brought the world mark to Missouri. The Departmen of Conservation called Hall's fish to the magazine's attention and after much checking, the magazine recognized Hall.

Missouri has one other world record, a 117-pound blue catfish caught on a trotline in the Osage River in 1964 by Anzel Goans and his sons -- a group effort.

There is one other world record in the offing. Paul Dilley, Springfield, caught a two pound, two ounce green sunfish which is larger than the listed Field and Stream world mark. The magazine is checking documentation on that catch.

National rodeo champs to vie for $5,500 purse

Many top cowboys will be on hand in Sikeston for the 22nd annual Jaycee Bootheel Rodeo, Thursday -Sunday to test the Tommy Steiner rodeo stock and try to win part of the $5,500 purse.

Among those who have indicated they plan to attend are Danny Whiteley of Poplar Bluff, Sandy Kirby of Greenville, Tex., Kaye Kirby of Woodstown, N.J., Chick Elms of Stephenville, Tex., Sammy Groves of New Deal, Tex., and Tommy Puryear of Norman, Okla.

Whiteley, 27, and his wife and son live in Poplar Bluff where he is in business with his father, Mack Whiteley, who owns Auto Parts & Wrecking Co.

Whiteley is coming off the inactive list, where he has been for over a year, because of a badly broken leg which happened at the Salt Lake City, Utah rodeo last year. He has never rodeoed full time, but is a very competent bull rider and steer wrestler. He attended college at East Texas State University where he was a member of the National Intercollegiate Rodeo Team for two years.

Sandy Kirby 26, was last years National Finals Rodeo bareback riding winner. He is currently in the top 10 of the Rodeo Cowboy's Assn., in both the bareback and bull riding and also in the top 10 of the all-around standings. Kirby has shown his versatility in the past by winning three new cars, and one truck in the last four years for being the all-around champion at various rodeos across the U.S.A.

He, his mother, brother and sister live on his rance in Greenville, Texas.

Kaye Kirby, 22, is a brother of Sandy and lives in Woodstown, N.J., where he and his father own and manage a ranch. He mainly rodeos on the east coast until late summer when the rodeos "back east" slow down quite a bit. Kirby is currently in the top 20 of both the bareback and bull riding in the R.C.A. He is also like his brother in being a consistent all-around hand. He proved this by winning the yearly all-around champion awards at the televised Cowtown, N.J., rodeothree years in a row.

Elms, 28, of Stephenville, Texas, will also be contesting at the '74 Sikeston rodeo. He and his wife own and manage a western store in Stephenville. In the winter months he and his wife run the store together and in the summer, when Elms is gone rodeoing, his wife manages it. He is currently in the top 20 bareback riders of the R.C.A. for the 74 year. His rodeoing is confined somewhat to the Southwestern U.S. and he does not "hit the road" hard all year.

Groves, currently ranked tenth in the national saddle bronc riding standings with winnings of $8,917, has indicated plans to return to the Bootheel Rodeo to try to improve on the more than $400 that he won there last year.

Puryear, ranked fourth nationally in the steer wrestling last year, and standing fourth again this year with winnings of $10,361, plans to stop off in Sikeston for the rodeo.

Tommy Steiner will again provide the stock for the rodeo. He is well known for his great bucking bulls and horses, many of which are used at the National Finals Rodeo in Oklahoma, City, Okla.

Sports

The case of the reneging producer

By: JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Sexy Sybil was as pretty as a picture with a frame to match. And her greatest admirer was none other than a big time movie producer. Hoping to break into pictures, Sybil cheerfully agreed to accompany him wherever he went In fact, she couldn't have been any closer to him had she been his toupee.

Deciding to make her own scene in court, Sybil sued her erstwhile admirer for breach of contract.

"He promised me a movie career," she tearfully told the judge, "if I acted like a daughter to him. The fact is, I did even more. I permitted him to make love to me for over a year. The closest I ever got to a camera, however, is when he took pictures of me in a penny arcade, five for a quarter. He should be made to pay for not keeping his end of the bargain."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make the reneging producer pay Sybil for not keeping his promise?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that if Sybil had agreed to act like the producer's daughter in exchange for his providing her with a movie career as claimed, she herself, admittedly, failed to abide by the terms of the agreement. By permitting the producer to make love to her, noted the judge, she had not acted like his daughter.

World news in brief

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Despite the Cyprus cease-fire, a three-hour battle flared up Monday night between Greek and Turkish Cypriots in the eastern port of Famagusta. A spokesman for the United Nations peacekeeping force said Greek Cypriot troops apparently ambushed Turkish Cypriots who had left Famagusta's medieval fort, where they had been under siege for several days. Other Turks came to the ambushed refugees' aid with covering gunfire, the spokesman said. Casualty figures were not available.

HIROSHIMA, Japan (AP) — The mayor of Hiroshima, the Japanese city whose name 29 years ago became a synonym for nuclear devastation, demanded today that the world scrap its nuclear arsenals and free mankind of "the awesome threat of suicidal ruin." Mayor Setsuo Yamada spoke at ceremonies commemorating the approximately 85,000 victims of the world's first atomic attack, on Aug. 6, 1945. A second bomb was dropped on Nagasaki on Aug. 9, and Japan surrendered five days later.

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — The first joint session of Australia's Parliament begins today, called by Prime Minister Gough Whitlam to work on the country's devastating inflation — currently 20 per cent annually — and widespread labor unrest. Whitlam called the Senate and House together after the upper house rejected several key pieces of his two-month-old Labor government's legislative package. His party commands a 95-92 majority in the joint session.

Housing authority in Chaffee to be audited

CHAFFEE --The Chaffee City Council announced Monday night that an audit of the Chaffee Housing Authority will be made to see if the city is getting its fair share of money from the authority.

The council made the announcement after the Jaycees had requested that such an audit be made.

The council said it will investigate four different areas, including: the amount of money being paid for water sewage and solid waste pickup; the amount of street lights that are being used and how much the city is paying for this; the amount of money that has been paid by the housing authority in lieu of taxes since 1971; and whether the community center is being used for meetings by local organizations.

The audit report is to be made by Aug. 19, the date of the next council meeting.

The council heard a report that $864.75 has been collected for paving of Cox Hill and Nunn Road. Approximately $125 is reported as still being outstanding. The money is being collected by residents who live in the Cox Hill and Nunn Road area.

The council voted to buy a light and siren for the fire chief to use on his personal car. It also agreed to buy a lawn mower for use at the city cemetery.

New Madrid to tear down buildings deemed hazards

NEW MADRID --The City Council Monday night passed an ordinance providing for the demoliton of derelict buildings. The ordinance states that any building that is deemed a public nuisance, health or fire hazard may be torn down. The ordinance also states that an assessment be made against the premises and provides for the recovery of the cost.

After a study of the city dog ordinance, changes were recommended by Aldermen Bill Boyd and Joe Hunter and accepted by the council.

The alderman recommended that the city build a new dog pound at the water treatment plant site and City Administrator Don Lloyd was authorized to proceed with setting up a new system for the control of dogs.

The council passed a resolution to retain Blanton, Blanton, Rice and Sickal law firm of Sikeston to represent the city in its contract dispute with Associated Electric Cooperative.

The council also approved a directive to Mercantile and Trust Co. of St. Louis for fund investments on power plant issues at St. Jude Industrial Park.

Members of a committee from the New Town Improvement Club who appeared before the council inquiring when street paving would begin were told that corrected resolutions were ready for publication and the paving program would begin following the required publication period.

Action was deferred on accepting bids for solid waste disposal until further study can be taken by aldermen Joe Hunter and James "Ras" Jones.

The council was informed that a meeting is scheduled at 11 a.m. Aug. 13 at the request of the state park and recreation board to discuss the return to the city of 24 acres of land at the Hunter Dawson Historical site which had previously been turned over to the state for development. Mayor Jim Cravens, City Attorney Hal E. Hunter and City Administrator Don Lloyd will attend. Any council member may also attend.

The council approved a new ordinance, a new attorney's opinion and a new warrant for initiating a loan to cover the balance of $78,565 to the Bank of New Madrid for past street and storm drainage improvement; sewer, water and drainage improvement and park land.

Cravens reported to the council that traffic problems at the junction of North Main Street and Route U and at the junction of Route U and Highway 61. He said the highway department advised the city to submit a proposed plan to be studied by the highway department for its approval.

The council approved the appointment of John Stevens to the police department. He is a former Portageville policeman.

In other action, the council approved the raising of light meter deposits on apartment buildings from $8.85 to $25, approved power plant construction payments of $104,463.94 at the 600 -megawatt steam generating plant at St. Jude Industrial Park for the period ending July 1, and accepted a contract closeout from Allis -Chalmers for air compressors of unit one of the power plant.

A package liquor license was approved for Marily Ivy for the premises known as The Sports Shop.

State marriage laws to change

A new law passed during the last session of the Missouri Legislature, scheduled to become effective Aug. 13, will permit couples to obtain a marriage license three days after taking the required blood test, or three days after applying for a license, whichever occurs first.

The law will permit couples who have taken a blood test at least three days previously to apply for and receive a marriage license on the same day. The old law required a three- day waiting period from the date of application.

Another new state law which will affect the current marriage laws is the majority rights bills which extends to 18- year - olds full rights to marry without consent, as well as to sue or be sued, etc. The majority rights for 18 - year - olds include all adult rights except purchase of intoxicating beverages which continues to be age 21.

Under the present law, the right to marry without consent begins at age 21 for men and age 18 for women and the right to sue or be sued begins at age 21 for both sexes.

Marijuana plants killed near Chaffee

CHAFFEE --Acting on a tip from an undercover agent, Chaffee Police Chief Jimmie Coats and two city policemen Sunday morning destroyed 140 marijuana plants in a "popular party area" on a farm east of Chaffee which they discovered Saturday.

The officers were told by the agent that youths often used the area as a place to smoke marijuana and then hide the unused portion in bags in the woods.

Searching the area Saturday morning, the officers found only empty bags, but did discover seven planted pots, each containing 20 marijuana seedlings about 3 inches tall.

About 300 yards away were several 45 -ounce juice cans containing manure and a one -gallon plastic container of water used to cultivate the plants, the police chief said.

The officers returned Sunday morning with a commercial week killer obtained from the city, dug up the plants, exposed them to the sun and used the weed killer to destory them, the chief said.[

Coats said no arrests were made and there are no suspects.

He said finding a suspect might be hard since "Chaffee has between 40 and 50 pot heads."

"The drug situation in Chaffee is not of epidemic proportions, but is on a minimal basis with the drugs being brought in from Cape Girardeau," he added.

He said the source was specifically Cape Girardeau, and not Cape County, adding, "Let's put the monkey on the back where it belongs."

Coats would not disclose the name of the property owner on which the marijuana was located. He said the owner did not know what had been going on and didn't want his name disclosed to the public.

The Scott County sheriff's office say they had not been advised of the plants growing in the area. The police chief made no report of the discovery and asked for no assistance from the sheriff's office in carrying out his "duty" as a private citizen."

Coats said the area is patrolled daily by police looking for evidence of drugs. It is checked every morning, but seldon at night since Chaffee police have no jurisdiction in the area outside the city, he said.

made by Councilman Arthur Ziegenhorn, who said he doubted that extending the runway 500 feet was worth the cost.

The project will cost $235,000, with 75 per cent of the money being provided by the Bootheel Regional Planning Commission, the federal government and the state government.

Bill Swann, representing the Airport Advisory Board, said the longer runway would enable larger planes to use the airport.

Some larger business planes which now use the airport cannot take off fully loaded because of the shortness of the runway.

The project will require an additional 30 to 35 acres, and the city is negotiating a trade with Burt Rowe for some of his farmland at the north end of the runway in exchange for the same amount of land west of the runway.

The trade now being considered would take part of the land that has been set aside for a future golf course at the new city recreational complex.

Whitlock gave the council a map showing the areas that trash haulers will bid on when the city's solid waste disposal plan goes into effect. The plan will probably be implemented on Jan. 1, 1975.

The areas are the wards the Board of Municipal Utilities has divided the city into for collecting water and sewer bills. The Board of Municipal Utilities will collect the garbage hauling fees under the city plan. The fees will be included on the water and sewer bill.

The map is available to any garbage hauler who wants to bid for the right to haul garbage.

The council passed an ordinance establishing a city liquor by the drink license under the new state law which grants resorts the right to sell liquor by the drink.

The state law defines a resort as any motel with 40 rooms and a restaurant or any restaurant doing $100,000 a year in business.

The law becomes effective Aug. 13.

Under the ordinance, the city license will cost $450 per year. The Holiday Inn is the only establishment that has applied for a city liquor by the drink license so far.

Ron Grojean, 814 William St., was appointed to the City Planning and Zoning Commission to replace Raymert Miller, who resigned. Grojean is associated with Grojean Engineers, 301 S. Main St.

The Jaycees were granted a temporary 3.2 per cent beer license for use during the Jaycee Bootheel Rodeo this weekend.

The council rejected a request by Jack Clemmons of Morley for a 3.2 beer license at 21 Club on West Malone Avenue because Clemmons has a police record.

Bond says drought disaster exists in state

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A drought disaster exists in Missouri, Gov. Christopher S. Bond said — Monday.

If U.S. Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz or the President includes Missouri in a drought disaster declaration, Missouri farmers can get loans at five per cent interest from the U.S. Farmers' Home Administration.

John Foster of Columbia, FHA director for Missouri, said farmers can get loans to cover their actual operating loss. To qualify, they must have suffered a 10 per cent over-all loss.

The state Agriculture Department is making a survey to determine what counties should be included in the disaster declaration.

Foster said the drought is "spotted throughout the state."

But southeast Missouri apparently has suffered the most damage.

State Agriculture Director James Boillot has estimated the state will lost half its corn crop, but other officials have only said that the corn crop will be considerably smaller than last year's 88 bushels an acre.

Soybeans are a $400 million annual crop in the state, and Missouri ranked third in the nation last year in soybean production. The state ranks seventh in corn production, with a $300 million annual crop.

Foster said the U.S. Agriculture Department's emergency board asked Bond to write to Butz requesting declaration as a drought disaster area.

Foster said the dry conditions—no substantial rain has fallen since June—is burning the pastureland and farmers may begin sending more cattle to feed lots.

C of C urges new I-55 interchange and north loop

A proposal for an interchange on Interstate 55 between Sikeston and Benton has been revived, and the Sikeston Chamber of Commerce is pushing for the interchange to be located near the north city limits on Tanner Road.

The interchange has been proposed two or three times previously and each time the proposal died according to District 10 Highway Department engineer Lionel Murray.

The Chamber board recently, in a unanimous vote, decided to draft, a resolution supporting the north loop. Bill Wellborn, the chamber's executive vice president, said that the interchange would open up extensive acreage for industrial and residential areas and would ease the traffic problem on East Malone Avenue.

He urged everyone interested in the project to let the state highway commission know their views.

The stretch between Sikeston and Benton is reportedly one of the longest in the state without an interchange. If a northbound motorist misses the Sikeston exit at Highway 62 East, he has to drive to Benton and turn around.

Murray said his office has submitted three locations for an interchange, one at Route U near Blodgett, one at Route H, where an overpass already exists and one at Tanner Road.

Murray said the Route H location would probably be the least expensive because of the existing overpass.

However, from Sikeston's standpoint, the Tanner Road location would be the best, he said, and it is the Tanner Road location that the Sikeston Chamber of Commerce is pushing for.

Charles Mitchell, a Sikeston realtor responsible for reviving the project, said the interchange is needed to alleviate the heavy traffic on Malone Avenue, which has now reached 25,000 cars a day, according to a recent count.

A reduction in traffic could cut down the number of accidents on Malone Avenue.

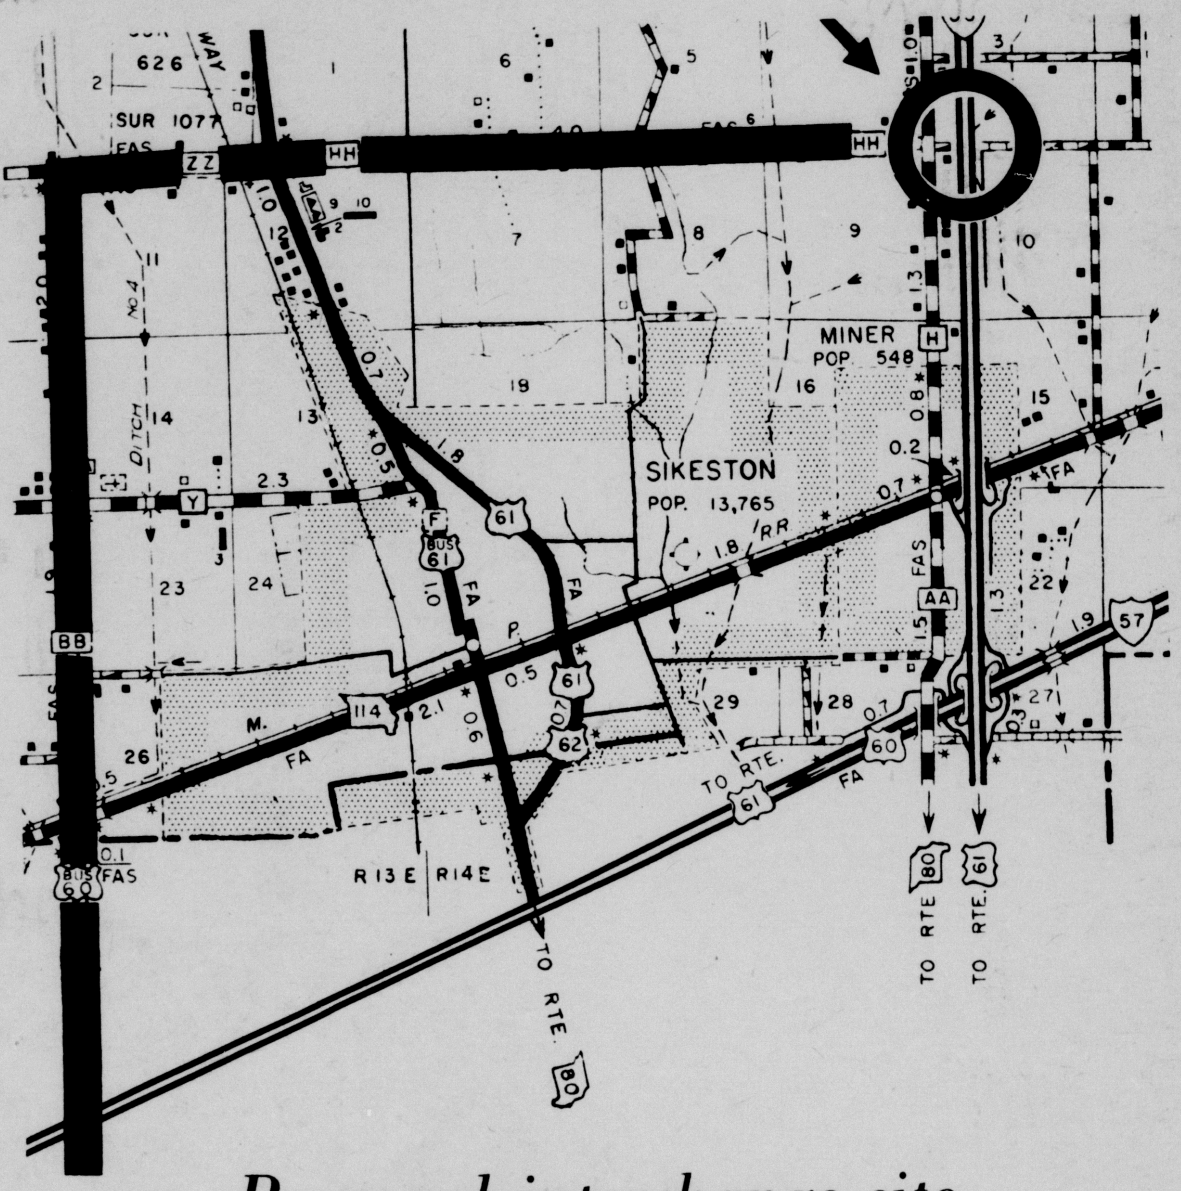
The interchange would help people living on the north end of town who now drive to Benton to get on I- 55 to avoid the traffic on Malone Avenue.

The interchange would also open a large area north of Sikeston and Miner to residential and industrial development.

An interchange would benefit the whole Sikeston -Miner area, Mitchell said.

Final approval for the overpass, if it involves federal funds, must come from the federal government.

Mitchell said letters of support are being requested from the Scott County Court, the county special road district, the Sikeston City Council and Miner Board of Trustees, Bootheel Regional Planning Commission, Sikeston R -6 School District Board of Education and other interested parties.



Proposed interchange site

The Sikeston Chamber of Commerce is pushing for a north interchange on Interstate 55 between Sikeston and Benton to be located near the north city limits at Tanner Road. The route of the proposed north loop which is supported by the Chamber is outlined in a heavy black line with the point of entry from Interstate 55 circled. The interchange would open up industrial and residential areas north of Sikeston and would relieve the traffic problem on East Malone Avenue according to Bill Wellborn, executive vice president of the chamber.

State legislators cast votes on stamp issue

The majority of Missouri representatives voted on June 21 to continue the practice of distributing food stamps to subsidize striking workers.

The vote which decided this matter was taken on an amendment to the Agriculture Appropriations Act which would have banned food stamps for strikers.

The only Missouri representative voting for the amendment, a vote for the ban on the practice was Rep. Gene Taylor of Sarcoxie, who represents southwestern Missouri.

Voting against the amendment, thus in favor of continuing the food stamps for strikers program, were Richard Bowling of Kansas City; Bill Burlison of Cape Girardeau, William Clay of St. Louis; William L. Hungate of Troy, Jerry Litton of Chillicothe, William J. Randall of Independence, Leonor K. Sullivan of St. Louis, James W. Symington of Ladue.

Richard H. Ichord of Houston, Mo., did not vote.

Mahlon R. Aldridge III, general counsel and manager of governmental affairs of the Missouri Chamber of Commerce in Jefferson City said "It seems clear to us that the vast majority of Missourians who oppose governmental strike subsidies at this time of record high prices and inflation. The only way Missouri Congressman can get away with voting against ending strike subsidies is if he thinks you are not aware of his action."

Aldridge urges people to write or call their congressmen and let him know how voters feel about this issue and his vote.

Phone rate hike suspended for 120 days

ST. LOUIS — The Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. of St. Louis on July 2, filed its application for an increase in rates for telephone service in the Missouri service area of the company.

In its application, the company submitted revised tariff sheets containing rates designed to increase annual gross revenues by approximately $48,000,569 based upon its operations as of March 31, exclusive of municipal and county gross receipts taxes.

To allow sufficient time to study the effect of the proposed increases and to determine if they are just, reasonable and in the interest of the public, it was the opinion of the Public Service Commission at a July 29 meeting that the proposed tariffs should be suspended for 120 days beyond Aug. 2, the requested effective date.

The commission, therefore, ordered that tariff sheets submitted July 2 by Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. of St. Louis, for the purpose of increasing rates for telephone service within the Missouri service area of the company, be suspended for 120 days beyond Aug. 2, the requested effective date, to Nov. 30 unless otherwise ordered by the commission.

It was also ordered that the order take effect immediately.

State experiences product shortages

JEFFERSON CITY — Many Missouri industries are feeling the pinch on shortages created by the energy problem, according to results of a survey taken recently by the Missouri Energy Data Exchange in Jefferson City.

Normal order lead times for products used in manufacturing and service industries have lengthened considerably, particularly on steel products, paper and products made of derivatives of oil, such as chemicals and plastics.

Few industries have shut down product lines permanently, according to the survey, but many are depleting their stocks of materials and finding it difficult to obtain new supplies without long delays. Fifty-two per cent of those responding reported product availability delays ranging from just a few days to as long as two years. Only six firms reported dropping specific product lines, with five of those expecting to reinstate production once raw materials are more readily available.

Help travelers enjoy Sikeston

If you want Mr. Traveler to stay longer in Sikeston or "hurry right back" observe and practice these Dos and Don'ts which have been recommended by your Sikeston Chamber of Commerce.

Do

GIVE HIM A WARM WELCOME. Southern hospitality is a refreshing and welcome change to the treatment Mr. Traveler is used to. You've got to flaunt it!

BE HELPFUL. Go out of your way to make Sikeston's out- of- town visitors feel like guests. It is good salesmanship and it sells Sikeston.

BE KNOWLEDGEABLE OF YOUR COMMUNITY. Know all you can about your business, your community, its nearby attractions and the state in which you live. Be proud of Sikeston and the Bootheel. You can be one of her best salesmen. It will mean more money for you too!

TREAT EVERYONE AS AN INDIVIDUAL. Take enough time with each visitor to make him feel you are genuinely interested. Remember, Mr. and Mrs. Traveler is probably in Sikeston trying to get away "production line" type treatment for a few days. Selling takes time --- take time to sell Sikeston.

PUT YOURSELF IN HIS SHOES. Be sympathetic with the fellow who has an awful hangover, asthma, or whatever. Really feel sorry if his car is on the blink or if he is having a hard time finding a place to stay. It pays dividends.

GIVE HIM A FRIENDLY SMILE. Your smile is that personal welcome that reminds Mr. and Mrs. Traveler that they are among friendly folks -- "Sikeston folks." A smile costs so little, yet means so much.

Don't

JUST GET BY WITH WHAT YOU CAN. Nothing irks the visitor more than "just passable service." Don't take the attitude "let 'em holler" or you will never see them again.

STEP ON HIS TOES. Snap back at Mr. Traveler, tell him he doesn't know what he is talking about, treat him like a "Damn Yankee" and you can be sure he won't forget "not to come back."

BE A SOUR-PUSS. One sour-puss can spoil Mr. Visitor on the whole city. Remember "honey catches more flies than vinegar" and when you offend visitors in Sikeston, you are not only hurting your business but that of many others.

GIVE HIM THE COLD SHOULDER. Once Mr. Tourist or Businessman gets the idea that Missourians are unfriendly, home they go to another state as fast as they can. Don't kid yourself that they don't pass the word along too!

BE BORED WITH HIS TROUBLES. Here is one way to ruin the travel business -- just be indifferent to Mr. Traveler's troubles. Keep right on talking to someone else, turn your back, or give him a "so what" look when he is telling you his tale of woe. That will do it!

BE A DUMMY. Don't even pretend to know one thing about Sikeston -- where there is a good place to eat, nearby points of interest how many miles to the next town -- or you can kiss your share of the tourist dollar goodby. Mr. and Mrs. Traveler are headed for a more friendly state.

Every 100 tourists visiting Sikeston each day over a one -year period produce $534,000 in retail sales, $675,000 in personal income, 133 new automobiles, $130,000 in bank deposits, 100 new jobs, and tax monies to educate 42 children.

Remember—you are Sikeston's ambassador

Noranda expands

NEW MADRID --The Noranda Aluminum Co. will spend an estimated $70 million to $90 million on doubling the capacity of its aluminum reduction and fabricating plant at New Madrid, the Globe -Democrat disclosed July 2.

The plant now produces 70,000 tons of ingots, billets and rod and wire aluminum products annually. On completion in mid 1976, the annual capacity will be boosted to 140,000 tons, Clint Halstead, Noranda Plant manager, said. It will mean at least 250 new production jobs.

The Association Electric Co -Operative of Missouri, which operates a 600,000 kilowatt electric generating plant to supply the Noranda plant, is building a 600,000 kilowatt addition to meet Noranda's future electricity needs.

The second generating unit is expected to go into service during the summer of 1977. When complete the 1,200,000 kilowatt plant will be the largest electric cooperative known.

Noranda produces molten aluminun metal in a series of 174 electric furnaces called reduction cells. It uses enough power daily to supply a city of 35,000 people.

Nixon still vows he will not quit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Facing the gravest crisis of his presidency, Richard M. Nixon bluntly told his Cabinet today he will not voluntarily leave the nation's highest office.

Cabinet members who emerged from the urgent, 90-minute session quoted the President as saying he "intends to stay on and allow the Constitution to be the overriding factor."

"We have laws in this land and he is sworn to uphold the laws," Treasury Secretary William E. Simon told newsmen as he left the White House.

Demands for Nixon's resignation mounted swiftly after his disclosure Monday that he tried within a week of the Watergate burglary to thwart a crucial phase of the FBI's investigation of the case.

Some of the strongest pressure for Nixon's removal from office came from his staunchest supporters in the past.

All 10 of the Republicans on the House Judiciary Committee who voted against all three articles of impeachment approved by the committee said Monday's disclosures had caused them to reassess their positions.

Many of them said flatly they would vote for impeachment if Nixon does not resign.

Nixon got solid backing from the Cabinet members.

Participants in the meeting said Nixon stressed that he would not resign.

"The President sincerely believes he has not committed an impeachable offense," Simon said. "He also believes the Constitution provides for a process that should indeed be overriding."

Simon said there was no discussion of the 25th Amendment, a constitutional provision under which a president can temporarily step down and allow his vice president to become acting chief executive.

White House officials have confirmed that both resignation and 25th Amendment options have been considered by the President and firmly rejected.

Simon said while Nixon didn't ask for expressions of support from his Cabinet "of course he got it."

"We've got a country to run," Simon said. "Let's not have this tragedy obscure the fact that we have a lot of determined people at work" on such problems as the economy.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger emerged to tell newsmen U.S. foreign policy traditionally has been bipartisan and that "no foreign government should assume" any alteration in this because of Watergate.

Kissinger ignored repeated questions about whether he personally would favor a Nixon resignation.

Secretary of Labor Peter J. Brennan was asked if any Cabinet members indicated they wanted out of the administration.

"Everybody's staying on," he responded. "They've got a job to do."

One-cent sales tax may help city raise money

A one-cent city sales tax was discussed by the City Council Monday night as a means of raising money for future city improvements.

Mayor Frank Ferrell said Sikeston has reached the point where finding of additional revenue has become a real problem.

"We are at the point where we have to decide to move on, sit still or fall backward," he said. He added that Sikeston would soon outgrow its tax structure.

Acting City Manager Bill Whitlock said recently that city services will begin deteriorating within a year if more revenue is not found.

The higher cost of everything is cited as the major cause of the city's financial troubles.

Whitlock presented to the council a fact sheet and a proposal for improvements which could come to the city with the adoption of a sales tax.

The improvements included an accelerated street improvement program, upgrading of the police and fire departments, a new northside fire station and equipment, an improved parks and recreation program, a reduction or elimination of garbage pickup fees, lower real estate taxes, funds available for matching future federal grants and having more people participate in city funding.

City officials have said in the past that a sales tax would allow the city to collect revenues from people who do not now pay city taxes but use city facilities, such as renters and out-of-town residents who shop in Sikeston.

The sales tax would raise about $450,000 in its first year, Whitlock said.

The council will hold a joint public meeting with the City Planning and Zoning Commission on Aug. 20, at which David Pence, city manager of Poplar Bluff, will discuss what the adoption of a one- cent sales tax has meant to Poplar Bluff.

If the council favors the sales tax, voters will be asked to decide the issue in the November general election. With voter approval, the sales tax would go into effect on April 1, 1975.

The money would be collected by the State Department of Revenue, along with the state sales tax, and then be returned to the city. Whitlock said the state can collect the tax cheaper than the city could hire someone to collect it.

No opposition was raised to the airport runway extension project at a public hearing on the environmental impact study during the council meeting. The only negative comments were

Residents asked once again to cut water use

The Sikeston Board of Municipal Utilities is again asking residents to cut back on their use of water.

Water use in the city remains over three million gallons a day, far beyond the city filtration plant's capacity.

Director of Utilities Dick Inman said that if the "situation continues to exist, it will be necessary for city crews to curtail the usage by closing valves to different areas of the city."

Inman said he has seen residents watering their lawns after dark. In some cases, he said, the water was flowing out into the street.

Inman initially asked residents to cut back on water usage on July 23, and he reported water use dropped for the next few days. However, residents went back to their old habits soon afterward, he said.

The parade will turn left on South Street, right on South New Madrid Street and move across Malone Avenue to East Front Street, where the procession will turn right onto Front Street.

An individual or group interested in participating in the rodeo parade should contact Bruce Barnes by phone at 471-9926 between the hours of noon and 7:30 p.m.

Fire damages loading dock

The loading dock at the Caproco, Inc. building was badly damaged by a fire a state fire marshal says set by arsonists about 11 p.m. Monday. Firemen said damage was extensive and a trailer backed up to the dock was destroyed by the fire.

State fire official says Caproco incident arson

A representative of the state fire marshal's office was sifting through the debris today at the Caproco, Inc. plant on Industrial Drive looking for clues in a Monday night fire which destroyed a trailer and damaged part of the plant.

Louis Gray of Jefferson City said the fire was definitely the work of an arsonist.

Fire Chief Larry Linnemeyer said the fire started about 11 p.m. and was discovered at 11:30 p.m. by a watchman.

The fire was set near a trailer owned by Tucker Truck Line, located across the street on St. John's Drive, backed up to the loading dock on the east side of the building. The truck was filled with pool liners and trampolines.

Firemen fought the blaze until 1:15 a.m. today with two pumpers and a ladder truck.

The fire damaged the loading dock area, a shed on the east wall and materials stored outside in the area of the fire.

Linnemeyer said he could not estimate the damage in dollars but that it was considerable.

Linnemeyer said a sprinkler system kept the fire from spreading into the building. He said two sprinkler heads were activated by the fire.

When fire trucks arrived, the south entrance to the loading area was blocked with telephone poles, and the trucks had to go around to the north of the building, Linnemeyer said. When firemen got to the fire they found the area covered with nails. Linnemeyer said one of the fire trucks had a flat tire this morning.

This is the second fire at the plant since workers went out on strike.

A bale of hay was pushed under a tractor- trailer truck July 18 and set afire, but the fire was extinguished before it caused any damage.

Earlier Monday firemen were called to a weed fire at 604 E. Matthews St.

The fire was discovered about 3:15 p.m. and spread to a fence and utility pole before being extinguished.

Linnemeyer said a child had been seen playing in the area where the fire started shortly before the blaze was discovered.

Wardell man killed in 1-car accident

A 95- year - old Wardell man was killed in a one- car accident near Pascola and four persons were injured in three area traffic accidents Monday, the highway patrol reported today.

Prince Smith was killed at 2:15 p.m. in an accident on Route B one mile and a half north of Pascola.

The accident occurred when a car driven by McKinley Criss, 76, of Wardell ran off the road and struck a bridge railing.

Criss was seriously injured and was taken to Pemiscot County Memorial Hospital in Hayti.

Smith's body was taken to Jimmy Osburn Funeral Home in Wardell, where arrangements are incomplete.

Two Arbyrd women were seriously injured at 1:50 p.m. at the intersection of Route YY and Highway 164 near Hornersville when a car driven by Dorothy Christos, 64, made a left turn onto Highway 164 into the path of an eastbound truck driven by Binnie Fleeman, 45, of Manila, Ark.

Mrs. Christos and a passenger in her car, Lillie Ramey, 79, were taken to Dunklin County Memorial Hospital in Kennett. Mrs. Ramey was transferred to Community Methodist Hospital in Paragould, Ark.

According to the patrol's accident report, Willie G. Woodard, 43, fell asleep at the wheel of his tractor-trailer truck, which ran off the road and struck a parked car.

Woodard was seriously injured. A passenger, Dorman Monroe, 24, of Steele also was injured, but the extent of his injuries were not determined. Both were taken to Southeast Missouri Hospital in Cape Girardeau.

MODERNIZING
FATHER TIME

The early part of the year many individuals' fancy turns to Daylight Savings. A West Virginia teacher advocates, in addition to taking liberties with the clocks, we do the same with the calendar.

When the end of February arrives, if we set the calendar ahead and skip a month, you not only enter the spring season of April ahead of time but escape the Ides and other perils of March as well. This brings vacation a month earlier. Then to prolong this state of bliss and keep the equinox and other functions of the sun in their proper relation, when we reach the end of August, the calendar is set back and we relive this month a second time.

Perhaps the greatest shock to many working people is that the nation's Social Security system is due for a drastic overhaul soon.

According to reports, new studies show the fund will run into the red before long, unless there's either a cut in benefits or an increase in contributions.

U. S. News & World Report comments that inflation is one reason, while another is the declining birth rate which projects that the number of workers paying S.S. taxes will shrink in proportion to the number of retired persons.

While maximum payroll taxes on employers and workers have nearly doubled in only three years, it could easily increase another third by 1978. That is, if the taxpayers will stand hitched for a higher S. S. deduction from the paycheck.

But he saw no goals. In that segment of his life which lay within his vision, he saw no great, gaping spaces which yawned for a man of deeds to come and fill. He saw no mighty rivers to span. He saw no unexplored regions to conquer. He saw no ravening monsters to challenge his prowess. He saw only people, little people, who blocked his view.

So the youth stood aloof. Frustrated and despondent, he sought a sage to whom he made his confession. "I want to do big things — great things!" He said, trembling with passionate zeal, "but I can see and think only of little things — the little comings and goings of the lives of little people. I am surrounded by littleness. Tell me how to train my vision so I can see great purpose in the offing."

The old philosopher smiled an indulgent smile. "Continue to see little things, young man," he said. "Observe them diligently; fill your soul with their littleness, and out of your earnest concern will grow the mighty things which you desire."

Pigeons were once so numerous in the United States that they were a manace to crops, and a constant source of annoyance to farmers. One method of getting rid of them was to catch a pigeon and fasten it to a "call stool" in the field. When the other pigeons flocked around the decoy, it was easy enough to trap them. From this practice we have derived our expression, "stool pigeon."

"This Administration has proved that it is utterly incapable of cleaning out the corruption which has completely eroded it and re-establishing the confidence and faith of the people in the morality and honesty of their Government employes. The investigations which have been conducted to date ... have only scratched the surface. For every case which is exposed, there are 10 which are successfully covered up and even then this Administration will go down in history as the 'scandal-a-day Administration."

"It is typical of the morals standards of the Administration that when they are caught red-handed with payoff money in their bank accounts the best defense they can give is that they won the money in a poker game, a crap game, or by hitting the daily double.

"A new class of royalty has been created in the United States and its princes of privileges and payoffs include the racketeers who get concessions on their income tax cases, the insiders who get favorite treatment on Government contracts, the influence peddlers with keys to the White House, the Government employe who uses his position to feather his nest. The great tragedy, however, is not that corruption exists but that it is defended and condoned by the President and other high Administration officials. We have had corruption defended by those in high places. If they won't recognize or admit that corruption exists, how can we expect them to clean it up?"

DOGGONE IT!

A growing number of urban American dog owners are taking the trouble to scoop up after their pets during their daily and nightly walks - a socially considerate act prompted by a need for improved street sanitation. But not so long ago, the same act in Old World cities, done by professional searchers carrying pails, was equivalent to picking up money. Dog dung, during several centuries, ranked as the most valuable of all animal wastes. It was a commodity much in demand for curing fine leather. Its use had spread to Europe from the Near East after the Middle Ages. The Truks made good leather with dog dung and Constantinople, a be- kind - to - animals city, sheltered lots of dogs whose output created an exportable surplus. Big cargoes of it went to western Europe and later the United States. During the 19th century, tanners in England developed a self- help trade. British dogs were producing, and the occupation described as "finder of the pure" was encouraged among the working class.

Pure, sometimes spelled puer, was the commodity's industrial name, adapted from French purin, manure. Men and women trudged through streets picking up dog droppings to sell for a shilling a bucketful. Finally, beginning around 1900, scientific analysis revealed that the working ingredients of dung were a class of fermenting chemical compounds called enzymes. Within living memory, substitution of clean synthetic chemicals for "pure" wrought a great, silent — and welcome — revolution in the leather industry. Regrettably, dog drippings now aren't worth a cent, and can't even be given away.

THE SAGA OF DIZ

The death of Dizzy Dean closed a chapter on individualism. He was known to millions for his antics on the baseball field and in front of a microphone. Diz was a great performer when he was on the pitching mound. He was an entertainer when he was behind the microphone. Above all, he was a product of the American system of enterprise. Diz said he had a strong right arm and a weak mind. We agree only with the first part of the statement. He had the mind and the determination to rise to the top in his chosen occupation and he reached the summit in baseball despite his humble beginnings on a farm in Arkansas.

The strong right arm was not a natural gift, Diz would say. He developed it first by throwing rocks and then throwing a baseball. He went on to set records in major league baseball and only an unfortunate incident in an All-Star game cut short his career and denied him other records. Dean was not content to rest on his records. He entered the field of broadcast and it is doubtful that there ever was a more popular sports announcer. Again, the enterprise in him was at work.

Diz could make us laugh. He could help us enjoy baseball. He became a part of the American scene and was admired by Presidents as well as the kids whose baseballs he was always happy to autograph. Dizzy Dean set records on the field of baseball and he set records in other fields, too. He knew how to laugh. He knew how to work. Perhaps work and a sense of humor were the key ingredients in his greatness.

Is Justice Dead?
Attorney General Reports His Department Is Cracklingly Alive

I'm a Justice Department buff. Which is why I was doubly distressed, as I wondered around Washington, to hear some wit hum, "Yes, we have no government today." Thus, I turned to Atty. Gen. Saxbe and asked just what has happened to the 50,000-man (and woman) department on which so much of this nation's freedom rests. Here is his reply, written exclusively for this column:

By William B. Saxbe
Attorney General of the United States

WASHINGTON — As a United States Senator on his way to becoming the fourth Attorney General of the Nixon administration, I was somewhat apprehensive as I sifted through the mountain of commentary last winter which suggested that the Department of Justice was in an absolute shambles.

Certain facts seemed to support the view of these Cassandras that the Department had been ravaged by Watergate's upheavals.

Within a span of 18 months, there had been three Attorneys General. Grave allegations had been leveled at former high officials of Justice. A special prosecutor had been fired. Some observers felt that the department had fallen victim to a savage erosion of the spirit.

You can imagine my delight at finding the gray sandstone walls of the department still standing and its red tile roof still firmly intact when I arrived last January.

And as the ensuing months unfolded, I came face to face with some challenging facts about the department's personnel.

Like the public at large, most were dismayed over what had been admitted, alleged, or charged in Watergate. But if anything, it was a more intensive reaction. For what all of the department's exployees have in common - from the messenger to the legal scholar - is a share of the work in an enterprise designed to uphold the law and do it fairly.

I also began to detect a sense of anger.

When Watergate detonated, many in the public began to look upon Justice employees with a broad- brush view: first, they had somehow been lax in their official responsibilities, and, second, subsequently so demoralized the department no longer functioned.

There are undoubtedly some whose morale was impaired. But the overwhelming bulk of the 50,000 employees felt an indignation which continued to move the department forward even in the worst of times. These men and women seem to me determined to do vital jobs with skill and efficiency - no matter what the obstacles may be.

However, since such judgments are subjective, let me cite a few examples to support my belief that the department is functioning, and functioning well.

Earlier this year, the FBI reported that in 1973 more than 1,250 persons were convicted in the organized crime field - a sharp increase over 1972.

The department's Organized Crime Strike Forces obtained 285 indictments against 654 persons in a recent nine-month period. In the past year, 16 organized crime leaders have been convicted.

Civil rights statutes are being enforced vigorously. A record number of cases were filed in 1973, including employment discrimination suits against the steel and trucking industries. The steel case brought a back- pay award of $31 million. And another record number of cases will be filed this year.

The conviction rate in cases brought by the Tax Division remains at an exceptional 90 per cent.

The Antitrust Division, which has brought several key cases for alleged bid-rigging and recently set up a new unit to investigate the energy field, is adding 83 positions to its roster, the largest staff increase in two decades.

Streamlined operations by the Drug Enforcement Administration promise to make major inroads in an immense problem. DEA agents and Mexican police recently made the largest marihuana seizure in history - 42 tons - which had a street sale value of $22.8 million.

The Land and Natural Resources Division has begun an ambitious program to better protect the nation's wetlands - a fragile, irreplaceable link in the ecology - and is continuing to enforce federal laws to protect the environment.

Funding approaching $900 million a year is flowing from the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration to help state and local governments combat crime.

The Federal Bureau of Prisons is building six new institutions to moderize and improve its programs. The bureau recently reported that two-thirds of the inmates released in 1970 had adjusted successfully - a much higher rate than generally believed possible.

And the list could go on and on, but space limitations preclude more than a brief glimpse of the mere tip of the Department's extensive, overall efforts.

By citing those activities, I do not suggest even remotely that, as Attorney General, I deserve all the credit. The full credit belongs to the department's employees.

My six months on the job have represented, in part, a learning process. I have announced some new programs, among them: creation of cargo theft teams in 15 major cities; expansion of federal- state- local law-envorcement committees to bring more resources to bear against crime; stepped- up training for our attorneys; efforts to enhance the career service; more vigorous antitrust enforcement which will, in part, help combat inflation.

A number of other efforts also are being developed. Each is designed to help make the department more effective in carrying out all of its responsibilities.

How well we do depends mostly on us, but also partly on public support. It is difficult to accurately assess public perception of the department, but there are a few yardsticks.

One is something we call the Honors Program by which we attract the highest- ranking law school graduates to the department. This year, more than 2,500 applied - compared to 2,000 in 1973.

Perhaps another is the remarkable number of persons who tour FBI facilities in the department - about 3,000 a day during the tourist season. The flow is unabated from pre-Watergate days.

As they queue up for the tour, many glance at words uttered long ago by Daniel Webster that are chiseled in stones which adorn the building: "Justice is the great interest of man on earth. Where ever her temple stands there is a foundation for social security, general happiness, and the improvement and progress of our race."

The men and women of the department take that challenge very seriously

A DO-NOTHING
EXECUTIVE

WASHINGTON - The thrust of President Nixon's new economic policy is to do nothing. The Administration's economic advisers have decided that, except for blaming the American people for inflation, it would be much wiser just to sit out the economic storms swirling around the nation and see what happens.

The director of the Economic Office of Doing Nothing is Mr. Chauncey Armageddon and, since he doesn't have much to do, he very kindly agreed to see me in the Executive Office Building of the White House.

When I walked into his office he was making paper airplanes from economic reports and sailing them across the room.

"Mr. Armageddon, you must have one of the toughest jobs in the Administration."

"I should hope so," he said. "It isn't easy to do nothing about an economic crisis of this proportion. But, fortunately, I've got the full backing of the President. I also have managed to put together an excellent staff of economists who believe in a laissez- faire philosophy."

"What do you do?" I asked.

"I beg your pardon?"

"How do you do nothing about the economy?"

"Oh," Armageddon chuckled, "I get you. Well, we do a lot of things. Our main function is to prevent other people in the government from doing anything. For example, when a report comes out that the cost of living has gone up, we immediately contact the departments of Commerce and Agriculture and tell them to do nothing about it. If we see unemployment rising, we call in the Labor people and explain to them why it would be better to ignore it."

"How do you feel about high interest rates?"

"We feel very strongly about them. That's why we're not doing anything about them."

"What's your position on two-digit inflation?"

"The President is very concerned about two-digit inflation, and he has instructed us to make it one of the highest priorities. He told me personally that if we do nothing about anything it has to be inflation."

"I imagine your office also concerns itself with tax reform."

"We certainly do. If you have tax reform you'll be setting economic forces to work that no one will be able to control. The Administration's position is that if we don't do anything about tax reform we will have made a major accomplishment toward the fight for a stable economy."

"Mr. Armageddon, is there any point that you could foresee where the President might have to do something about the economic state of the country?"

"I can't see anything on the horizon. If we produce more and buy less, then the marketplace will take care of itself. The key to a strong economy is the public's confidence in its leaders.

"Since President Nixon has the confidence of the country, and they know he has neither the time nor the intention of doing anything, the American people will solve their own problems, which is the way it should be. Nobody wants a President to tell him what to do when it comes to such personal matters as inflation, high prices and unemployment."

"Your phone is ringing," I said to Armageddon.

"I know, but I'm not going to answer it," he replied.

"Why not?"

"It might be somebody who wants me to do something about an economic problem, and if I don't take the call I won't have to do anything about it."

Washington-Merry-Go-Round
by Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON : Tens of thousands of vacationers have been unable to reserve campsites at 21 national parks this summer because the telephone reservation system was handled by an inexperienced firm.

The contract was awarded to Park Reservation System, which was incorporated in Claremont, Calif., on June 7 and began operations on June 23.

By a curious coincidence, the firm's president, L. Donald Middleton, happens to be a close friend of National Parks Director Ronald Walker. Spokesmen for both men deny that their friendship influenced the deal.

It is a fact, nevertheless, that the company was organized for the sole purpose of handling the camping reservations contract. The executives of the new company had no real experience in the field.

Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, a member of the Senate Parks subcommittee, asked the General Accounting Office to investigate the firm's performance. Here are the preliminary findings:

-- One day, 25,000 of 29,464 callers got only a busy signal. A spot check by GAO investigators on July 18 disclosed that only one out of every 20 calls got through the reservations switchboard.

-- Although the firm had raked in about $150,000 in reservations from campers by mid-July, it still hadn't posted the $100,000 performance bond required to protect the government's take.

-- The Park Service, after promising "virtually instantaneous" service for campers, has now called upon them to make their reservations by cards and letters. This slow service will be too late for many vacationers.

-- The Park Service has conceded, as a result of the foul-up, that "most parks are still receiving a fairly small number of reservations. . . resulting in many campgrounds no more than 10 to 15 per cent filled."

Nevertheless, the Park Service has extended the contract into August.

Footnote: Clark Powell, executive vice president of the embattled reservations firm, defended its operation as "the greatest thing since sex, if they give us a chance to the end of the year."

SAVED BY SAM: President Nixon's closest crony, Bebe Rebozo, excaped a possible contempt citation only through the personal action of kindly old Senate Watergate Chairman Sam Ervin, D-N.C.

As one of the committee's last acts, Ervin subpoenaed Rebobo's financial, telephone and other records. But the secretive Rebozo resisted bitterly, even going to court to fight the subpoena.

The showdown came behind the closed doors of Ervin's spacious Capitol hideaway. Rebozo sat by silently while his Miami attorney, William Frates, assailed the Watergate staff for harassing his client.

The angry lawyer charged that Rebozo had been questioned repeatedly, that his bank had been pawed through, that unfavorable secret testimony had been leaked to the press. Once lawmen rushed to Rebozo's Key Biscayne, Fla., bank to investigate a report that two suspicious men were casing it for a robbery. The two suspects turned out to be Watergate investigators.

At one point, Frates reportedly refused to negotiate if committee investigator Scott Armstrong was in the room. A general hubbub developed after co-chairman Howard Baker, R-Tenn., joined in the attack upon committee counsel Terry Lenzner.

Ervin restored order and twice sent the staff into a smaller hideaway belonging to Sen. Dan Inouye, D-Hawaii, to work out an agreement. The negotiations dragged on until the staffers and Frates, their nerves raw, fell into bitter dispute. As two witnesses recall it, Frates called Armstrong a "rat fink." But minority counsel Fred Thompson and Lenzner finally reached an accord with Frates, who agreed to provide substantial material from Rebozo's files.

Meeting again with the senators, Frates agreed to sign a letter formalizing the accord. But first, he had to meet with the Watergate prosecutors, he said, promising he would be back.

That was the last they saw of him. Instead of returning to Capitol Hill, he flew to Miami. A committee staffer was dispatched to Miami, but Frates refused to give up the promised material, complaining that still more damaging material had been leaked to the press.

Despite the runaround, Ervin let the contempt question die at a final meeting. The old constitutionalist explained to us that it was true "we were promised" the Rebozo material and "we didn't get it." But he said the committee was going out of business and "the Justice Department would have had to enforce the subpoena."

Concluded Ervin: "I have never favored contempt proceedings."

Footnote: My associate Les Whitten reached Frates in Miami. He attacked our column, refused to listen to the questions and hung up on Whitten. Frates' friends said he was honestly disturbed by the news leaks and acted in what he considered the best interest of his client.

WASHINGTON WHIRL: Rumors have persisted for almost a month that Vice President Gerald Ford has secretly asked former Att. Gen. Elliot Richardson to become Vice President if President Nixon is forced out of office. Both men deny it. But Richardson is making the grand tour of Moscow and other points, in the manner of men with an eye on high office. . . . The U.S. Information Agency must know something we don't. It's working busily on a film explaining to foreign lands how an American president comes to be removed from office. A rough-cut version of the movie shows President Nixon in his historic talks with world leaders and then portrays him caught in the impeachment process. At USIA, a spokesman said the final version won't be completed until after the President's fate is decided one way or the other. . . . Watergate is not President Nixon's only legal problem. Some 50 civil suits have been filed against him in federal courts, four times more than were filed against the late Lyndon Johnson. Although a few are Watergate- related, most are filed by individuals seeking redress from real or imagined ills. The Justice Department, as it has always done, handles the suits.

Council hires dispatcher

DEXTER - The City Council Monday night hired George Hunsaker as city dispatcher to replace Bud Cravens, who recently resigned.

The council met an hour ahead of schedule to permit Mayor Willis Conner to attend a dinner in honor of Jack Pritchard at 7:30 p.m. at the Hickory Log Restaurant. The event climaxed Jack Pritchard Day in Dexter. Pritchard, a Dexter resident, recently retired after many years of service with the Missouri State Highway Patrol.

In other action, the council voted to issue special tax bills for the paving of Poplar, Lewis and Alice streets and to renew licenses for Joe Hunter Plumbing and Heating and McMullin Excavating Co. A merchants and beer license also was renewed for Pizza Villa.

Installation of a trophy case in the city administration building to house baseball trophies also was approved.

Topics discussed and tabled included the removal of the streets in West City Park. The park board recommended that the streets be graded and planted in grass since ample parking exists on the street bordering the park. The board believes the absence of streets through the park will make the park safer for children.

Terry Hawes of C. R. Trotter and Associates told the council that a bid received for the new sewer district in the Dexter Creek Park area has been increased considerably since it was received in 1973. Property owners will be notified of the increase before the city decides on several alternatives.

BE CAUTIOUS WITH DEEDS

Probably the deed to your property is filed away, all but forgotten. Probably you've never checked it since the day it served to pass title from the previous owner to you. Perhaps you didn't even check it then. There may have been no urgent reason to. Nevertheless, an apparently secure deed can turn out to be a worthless piece of paper.

For instance, suppose the deed states the name of the seller, but doesn't contain his signature? Suppose the seller was under 21? Suppose the seller died before you received the deed? Suppose there's a n error in the way the deed describes the property?

Any of these defects - as well as many others - could make your deed invalid. But defective deeds are the exception, not the rule, so don't be frightened. Just be cautious. And the best way to be cautious is to deal with a reputable real estate professional and a knowledgeable real estate lawyer.

Risco native explores Holy Land

By PAT LANDERS
Risco Correspondent

Because of Israel's exciting past, many who have read and dreamed about the places of Biblical background desire to see them, and such a trip to the Holy Land became a reality recently for Miss Debbie Blough of Risco, who spent six weeks this summer working and touring that area.

Miss Blough, a student at Southwest Missouri State University at Springfield, Mo., was one of the 25 students from three educational institutions who participated in archaeological excavatons at Khirget -Raddana,which is 10 miles north of Jerusalem. The group was under the field supervision of Dr. Robert Cooley of Springfield.

The main purpose of the trip was excavation of the Israeli village, where discoveries have led to the belief that the inhabitants of that area were agriculturists. Interesting architectural information has been formulated on domestic buildings during the Iron Age I. Destructive evidence has recently been discovered which indicates the fierceness of the tribal war against Benjamin, which is recorded in the Bible (Judges 19 -21).

Among the artifacts uncovered during the summer's diggings were three bronze rings, three incense burners, some whorls (possibly used for spinning cloth), various unusual cups, flints, sickle blades and saddle kern grinding stones (probably used in agriculture), and ivory awl used for punching holes, and iron spear point which may have a type of inscription and several slingstones apparently used in wars.

Most of these items have not yet been fully evaluated by archaeologists.

While in Israel Miss Blough completed six hours of study in sociology, including Old World Field Methods in Archaeology, Regional Anthroplogy I and two other hours in an independent study of Religion.

Students in her group spent three days a week in their archaeological diggings, two days a week were spent touring and their two -day weekends were usually free for their individual pursuits.

Because Israel is a center for three of the world's main religions, Judaism, Christianity and Islamism (Moslemism), it provides excellent and unique tourism attraction. Pilgrims from all over the world come to visit the holy sites there.

Although many of the Jews do not hold sacred the holy sites of Christianity and Islamism, they have taken great care in preserving and protecting these sites.

One of the first intriguing visits of the students was to a community of tent -dwellers made up of Moslem Arabs whose main occupation is herding, but who in more recent times have begun farming. Another segment of Moslems are village dwellers who are farmers and craftsman , and a third segment is made up of persons from towns who usually hold more skilled -type jobs.

Other points of interest on the trip included the viewing of Aaron's tomb at Petra, swimming in the Sea of Galilee at Tiberius and viewing the Mount of the Beatitudes.

Antique souvenirs

Debbie Blough of Risco displays souvenirs of her summer travels to the Holy Land, including archaeological antiquities from Jerusalem which are believed to be from the time of Abraham, David and Christ. The bronze pot is from Egypt.

The group spent two days in a village community kibbutz, an incorporated cooperative enterprise, which has its own general assembly to govern them. The basic ideal is equality among its members.

Each person receives from the kibbutz according to his needs and contributes to the kibbutz according to his own abilities. Members are usually provided meals in a communal dining hall and receive medical care, education for the children, a type of social security for those no longer able to work and various other needs of daily living, which vary from one kibbutz to another.

Although the kibbutz is usually agricultural, some have industrial interests as well.

At Engedi, the tourists were shown the place where David and his army are said to have hid from Saul (I Samuel 23:29). They also visited the site of the finding of the Dead Sea Scrolls at the caves of Qumran, and later relaxed at Eilat, where there is a resort on the Red Sea.

During her stay in Israel Miss Blough made certain observations and studies of the state, especially in regard to the traditional life of the Israelites.

Misss Blough comments that in Jerusalem the weather was usually quite comfortable with a breeze blowing in from the Meditteranean Sea, but in Jericho and Eilat it sometimes becomes hot and humid.

The group spent the majority of their time in West Bank (occupied territory since the Six -Day War in 1967), so they were in comparatively close contact with the Arabs. Three Arabs were hired to assist the group in their archaeological work.

It is said that most of the people speak more than one language and some as many as four or five. This makes communication with residents no problem. Various languages spoken there may include Italian, Spanish, French, English, Hebrew and Arabic.

The Arabs, making up about one -fourth of Israel's population of some four million, are apparently friendly with people of our western world, in spite of any supposed propoganda against them. Most of the Moslems have remained traditional in some attitudes and may be offended by the improper dress of some tourists.

It is said that Israel has the highest taxes in the world, and that every bit of the tax money is needed and used --much of it being spent in developing military defense arms. Taxes are received mainly from income, with some received indirectly from imports.

Three things are said to unify the Israeli citizens in spite of their differing cultural backgrounds. They are:

Education by government schools, where state law requires education for the first six years. Higher education is encouraged to all, with government examinations given at the end of the sixth, ninth, and 12th years of study to decide which pupils are good candidates for higher learning.

The Hebrew national language in which the first six years of school are taught.

The army, which is no respecter of persons, Every able man, beginning at age 18, serves for three years in the forces and remains in reserves until age 55. Women, also, begin serving for 20 months at age 18 and remain in reserves until age 34.

An especially interesting topic to Miss Blough was the role of women in Israel, The liberation of women there has been a difficult task hampered by the traditional habits practiced in various communities. Social changes apparently come slowly.

The Women's Equal Rights Law of 1951 makes unilateral divorce against the will of the wife illegal. Woman can also now own property and have equal legal status regarding the guardianship of their children. Child marriage has been abolished and girls became subject to compulsory education.

The Equal Pay for Equal Work Law of 1964 has also been a great contribution to women's equality. However, the every day practice of the laws will depend upon attitudes of the individual community.

There is still a degree of selective discrimination against women in the area of marriage and divorce. Israelites are under the jurisdication of the religious courts, where Rabbinical Law states that divorce must be given by the husband, and the wife cannot give a divorce even in the case of her husband abandoning the family.

Recently, however, liberal interpretations of laws allow some wives to remarry if the missing husband is presumed dead.

Other traditional ways have kept the women of Israel under the authority of her husband. These include the practice of women not sitting at the dinner table until the males of the family are finished eating, not leaving the house without the permission of the husband and women walking behind the man rather than at his side.

Seemingly, the major things affecting the status of Israeli women are abolishment of polygamy, establishment of free compulsory public education from age 5 to 14 and the establishment of a minimum marriage age of 17 years.

Choosing one's own husband rather than marrying the one chosen by the parents is a recent change. Traditionally, however, the bride and her husband seldom spoke to each other before the wedding.

The appearance of gas stoves, electric refrigerators and hot water heaters in many Oriental and Arabic homes is an indicaiton of the changes that have taken place in the last 20 years. These new standards for women may often conflict with the old standards, but the new standards are apparently here to stay.

NEW YORK (ED)—This summer the fashion spotlight focuses on shoulder-revealing styles. Halters, tubes, tank tops and skinny little t-shirts all combine to highlight a wardrobe of cool, carefree summer clothes.

One of the newest bare shoulder styles is the do-it-yourself halter top—a colorful scarf that you tie bandeau-style and wear with long, swirling big skirts. For an added sense of security, the scarf can be tied around the neck like a halter. Another idea for a cool topper is the lowly t-shirt—dressed up with embroidery, sequins, appliques, ribbons and lace and worn over a long, silky skirt.

This summer the camisole tops of grandmother's day are coming out from under blouses to team up with shorts and jeans. White peasant blouses pushed down to bare the shoulders look crisp and feminine for lazy summer afternoons. And, the nostalgia craze has given rebirth to those marvelous sundresses reminiscent of the 30's and 40's.

With all the variety in your summer wardrobe, don't let the sun play tricks with strap marks. Play it smart and include a tan corrector

The look for summer is cool and comfortable with lots of toasty tanned skin to show off those marvelous new tops.

Sweet corn has fascinating history

By DR. L. M. HURSH
National Dairy
Council Consultant

I like corn on the cob so much that I'd like to write about it more than once a year. But they tell me that would be overdoing it so I wait each year until now.

Fresh sweet corn is, to my taste, one of the great delicacies. It also occupies a central role in the development of America and the rural life that I experienced when growing up in Minnesota.

So let's talk about corn and how delightful it is again this summer as one of the great blessings we receive from the harvest season. Boiled or roasted, and with melted butter and salt, corn is one of the foods everybody in the family enjoys.

Have we always had corn? It has a fascinating history.

What Experts Say

According to experts such as G. F. Sprague of the U. S. Department of Agriculture and John R. Edwardson of the University of Florida, corn probably originated in tropical South America. Botanically it is an annual plant of the grass family. It is the most important cereal in the Western Hemisphere. Only wheat and rice exceed corn on a world crop basis.

Food semantics can sometimes be confusing. For example, in Britain and continental Europe the word "corn" has been used for centuries to mean any of the small- seed cereals such as barley, wheat and rye. "Maize" is, of course, a worldwide specific term for the several varieties of corn we are really talking about.

Which leads me back to the Americas and ancient times. Wild corn is believed to have existed as early as 80,000 years ago. Somewhere along the line the word "maize" was coined to describe corn.

The difference between wild corn (which has not existed for centuries) and our domestic variety was one of size and particularly of ability to reproduce. In wild corn, when the plant was mature, the husks opened to permit the wild corn seed to be released. In other words, it could reproduce itself. In modern corn, the husks must be opened manually or by machine to free the seeds.

Early Corn Fragments

Reconstruction of early corn fragments found in Mexican caves indicates the wild corn cobs were less than an inch long, and that they had an average 55 small seeds or kernels, arranged in pairs, usually in eight rows. In contrast with today's corn (which has large ears borne low on the stalk), wild corn ears were probably borne high on short-stalked plants.

So wild corn pretty well perpetuated itself. Today, to reproduce corn, man must remove the seed from the ear, plant the seed.

Salt is essential to human life

By DR. L. M. HURSH
National Dairy
Council Consultant

Salt? We wouldn't want to live without it. We couldn't live without it. Salt is a constituent of seawater, of the soil, of plants and of every living cell and tissue.

And we all remember reading in our history books that wars have even been fought over salt. We not only need it nutritionally but in ancient times, in particular, it was the means of preserving precious food. Civilizations were built on salt's availability.

The proper exchange of salt in the human body between blood and tissues is essential to life. The impairment of this process interferes with the proper fluid content of the tissues and with the electrical components of the tissues functions. When something goes wrong with the handling of salt in the body, there is serious trouble.

A seasoning favorite

Thus there is no more vital element in human physiology than ordinary table salt — sodium chloride.

Salt is, of course, also a great favorite because it is a seasoning that brings out the flavor of other ingredients in our food. And some salt is naturally present in food, in varying amounts.

Food from animal sources, including meat, fish, poultry, milk and cheese, contain more sodium than do foods from plant sources. Foods from the sea are, of course, higher in sodium than fresh water fish.

Which brings us to warm weather and the belief that is circulated each summer that extra salt is needed when people work or exercise and perspire a great deal.

Diet Gives You Enough

Actually, the ordinary American diet provides sufficient salt for an adult to survive even the most vigorous sweating as long as his intake of water is maintained. Survival research in the Army, in which I have personally been involved, has proven that soldiers do not need things such as salt tablets, but they do have to drink sufficient liquids.

Tolerance to hot weather develops in seven to 10 days. Your body adjusts and the amount of salt you lose in sweat becomes less. Similarly, your appetite for water increases.

So, as a seasoning, let's use salt sensibly, eh? And if you have a special medical problem for which you should limit your use of salt, your doctor will tell you.

At the grocery store you can purchase either iodized or plain salt. I recommend iodized.

Without today's widespread use of iodized salt we would probably return to the high incidency of goiter that used to exist, especially in the middle west, some 50 years ago, before iodized salt was introduced to the market.

THE FAR SIDE OF PARADISE by Arthur A. Mizener 19604 - $1.50 - Biography

Arthur Mizener's biography of F. Scott Fitzgerald provides a definitive portrait of the man, his life, his work, and the legend he helped to make. Fitzgeral always wrote about people and things with which he was intimate. His own colorful life, his marriage to Zelda, were often reflected in his work. A person of great charm and influence, he lived in and wrote of upper middle class America in the 1920s, a time proving to be a turning point in the history of American culture. F. Scott Fitzgerald began his career with This Side of Paradise.

Legal secretaries have July meeting

The Cape Girardeau, Mississippi and Scott County Legal Secretaries Association met Thursday night in the Security Federal Savings and Loan Association community room, with Mrs. Bonnie Noles serving as hostess.

A brief report was given by Mrs. Ida Phillips on the upcoming legal seminar which will be held in late September.

Plans are being formulate; for the state convention, which will be held in Cape Girardeau in May, with Iron and St. Francois counties acting as host and the Cape Girardeau, Mississippi and Scott County Association as co-host.

Anne Elliott, owner of the Raggedy Anne Shop in Sikeston, presented an informative program on arts and crafts, including decoupage, various ways items such as an ordinary soft- drink case can be changed into a decorative object, how a plain canning jar, plus a little imagination, can become a quaint flower vase for a three- dimensional picture for various parts of the home and the use of oils and paints.

A variety of different craft items was shown.

At the close of the meeting, refreshments were served by Mrs. Noles.

The August meeting will be held in Jackson, with Mrs. Lillian Godwin as hostess.

Ecumenical prayers best

Dear Ann Landers: I am a Jewish widower who has been keeping steady company with a charming Protestant divorcee. We have agreed that the differences in religion will not be a divisive factor in our relationship. We are mature, liberal thinkers and each of us respects the rights of the other to hold the religious beliefs we were reared with.

Recently we had dinner at the home of my fiancee's close friends. Her grown children were present. Grace was said before the meal. The prayer was offered in the name of Jesus Christ, whom I have always accepted as a learned rabbi and teacher, but not as a deity. I have been present at public gatherings when prayers have been invoked in the name of Jesus and have always felt uncomfortable.

I believe prayers should be ecumenical in content when people of different faiths gather. In your opinion would it be best to remain silent on such occasions and consider it a thoughtless gesture? Or should I tell my fiancee how I feel and ask her to inform the host ahead of time so similar discomfort can be avoided in the future? -- Unsure

Dear U.: An ecumenical prayer is, of course, in much better taste when members of a variety of faiths are present, but it is in bad taste to tell others how to pray in their homes.

I have been the guest speaker at many luncheons and dinners when pork has been served and grace was offered in the name of Jesus. So I eat the salad and vegetables and silently say a Hebrew blessing. At our dinner table, however, when guests are present, we join hands around the table and the prayer I offer is always ecumenical.

Dear Ann Landers: I am still burning over your rotten advice to the young girl whose mother read her diary. You said, in effect, "Don't write anything that might create problems for yourself or others."

When a woman wrote to ask, "What can I do about my children wandering into my bedroom at night?" you did not say, "Don't do anything in the bedroom at night that you wouldn't do in the living room at noon." You replied, "Put a lock on the door." Nowadays, even the youngest child can scrape up enough money to buy a good padlock for a little trunk to put his diary in. And he can wear the key around his neck. Get with it! - Freemartin

Dear Mart: Nonsense. If a nosy unconscionable mother wants to get into a trunk or whatever, she'll find a way. And such a mother would be more inclined to do so if she noticed the child was going to a great deal of trouble to be secretive. She would probably tell herself, "He must be doing something very bad and I must find out what it is for his own good." This of course is shabby rationalizing but many mothers resort to it. So maybe YOU'D better get with it.

Dear Ann Landers: Our family has moved 14 times in the past six years. We always leave a forwarding address and I'm beginning to wonder if it's a good idea.

I've had letters from former neighbors and acquaintances whose names I can scarcely remember. They want to correspond and have even suggested that we visit them. Should I respond or would it be best to ignore the letters? -- Gypsie

Dear G: To ignore such well- meaning friends would be extremely callous. Simply write a friendly, noncommital note. Say you were flattered to have been remembered and you hope to see them again sometime.

Rookies look promising

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Five rookies made their respective coaches forget about striking National Football League veterans Monday night during Kansas City's 20-12 exhibition victory over the Detroit Lions.

The five are quarterback Dave Jaynes and running backs Woody Green and Tony Grisby, all of the victorious Chiefs, and running backs Dexter Bussey and David Wooley, both Detroit hopefuls.

Jaynes, an All-American from Kansas, floated a 46-yard touchdown pass to Craig Clark, Utah State rookie, the first time he threw the ball, capping a 76-yard drive with the opening kickoff. Grisby, from Bethune-Cookman, ripped through for a seven-yard touchdown and led the Chiefs runners with 74 yards on 12 carries.

Green, the Arizona State Flash, contributed vital yardage to Kansas City's two first half touchdowns, averaging 4.2 yards per thrust. He wound up with 38 yards on 15 tries.

Bussey, formerly the pride of Texas Arlington, stabbed one yard for Detroit's lone touchdown. Wooley picked up 38 yards on 15 carries.

"We knew Green was great," said Detroit Coach Rick Forzano. "We saw him at the Senior Bowl, and Jaynes was quite impressive. We were also quite impressed with Bussey and Wooley."

Hank Stram, the Chiefs coach, asserted that Grisby "was most impressive at the start of the game." Griby gained 30 yards carrying the ball on the Chiefs' first five plays.

Rookie Efren Herrera of UCLA kicked field goals of 32 and 28 yards for the Lions. Robert Currier, a Pudget Sound rookie, booted a 22-yarder and rookie George Jakawenko of Syracuse a 34-yarder for the Chiefs, who led 17-3 at halftime.

Rookies and free agents — plus four veterans on each team — played this opening game for both clubs before a crowd of 35,521. Chiefs officials had to make refunds to 8,000. A year ago, 67,216 saw Kansas City's first home game against New Orleans.

Chiefs veterans picketed outside the stadium during the contest, displaying signs and distributing literature charging NFL club owners with "failure to barain in good faith" and "issuing false propaganda."

Chiefs owner Lamar Hunt got into the wrong lane at gate No. 1 where wide receiver Otis Taylor and running back Ed Podolak were on picket duty.

"Hey, Lamar," Taylor shouted, "even you can't get through the red tape."

Hunt laughed as he pulled into the proper lane.

"Want to learn what's going on, Lamar?"

Hunt drove away without taking it.

Cardinals hold two-game lead over Phillies

ST. LOUIS (AP) — If the Philadelphia Phillies stumble in baseball's National League East, it will probably be due to chronic problems in the bullpen.

Manager Danny Ozark acknowledged as much Monday night but also conceded perplexity as to how to fill the club's most pressing need.

"It sure won't come from a contending club," he said of the help the Phils are seeking following a 3-2 loss in 13 innings to the St. Louis Cardinals.

"How do you compensate?" he mused. "You do it by getting more runs. We need four or five runs to get us into the late innings."

Ozarks' Phillies, falling two games behind the first-place Cards in the chase for the East Division title, were bolstered by 11 strong innings from starting pitcher Wayne Twitchell.

But a Ted Simmons home run, his 14th, ruined the right-hander's shutout bid in the ninth and eventually brought on help that failed.

Pete Richert, 1-1, was tapped for a leadoff double in the 13th by the Cards' Ted Sizemore and Bake McBride was intentionally walked.

That brought on Gene Garber, who walked Simmons purposedly following a wild pickoff attempt, and Joe Torre popped a Garber delivery off the left-center field wall for the winning hit.

"I can't be overly dissatisfied with the way Richert's pitched lately," Ozark said, however, "and even with Garber giving up the base hit. The ball was high. He had to get it over the plate.

"But I don't have that guy out there in the bullpen I'd like to have," the Phils' manager admitted. "If I had, things might be different.'

"We've just to keep getting it," he said of relief provided by Al Brabosky, Rich Folkers and Mike Garman, 3-2, who followed Bob Gibson.

Of 13 games the cards have won in 16 tests since July 19, Hrabosky has picked up the decision three times and Folkers and Hrabosky have been credited with two each.

"They're wonderful," maintained Simmons, the Cards' catcher. "They keep sending up those Ws. The only shame tonight was that Gibson didn't get any credit. He pitched a whale of a ball game."

Ziegenhorn falls to New Hamburg in men's softball

New Hamburg Blues edged Sikeston's Ziegenhorn 3-2 and Oran downed Vanduser 8-1 in men's fast-pitch district tournament action in Oran Monday night.

O. Kern took the win for the Blues relieving R. Dunkin while Chesser was tagged with the loss. Backfish connected for two hits to lead the Blues attack. D. Berger and R. Dunkin also managed hits for New Hamburg.

Don Roberts took the win for Oran, allowing two hits and fanning 10 at the plate in five innings of play. Don Pobst connected for a homer in the third for Vanduser's only hit of the game and Jim Johnson was tagged with the loss.

Tonight's schedule: New Hamburg Blues will meet Bank of Sikeston at 7:30 and Kelso vs. Scott City at 9 p.m.

TENNIS

LOUISVILLE — Jaime Fillol defeated defending champion Manuel Orantes 3-6, 6-4, 6-4 and Guillermo Milas rallied for a 6-4, 1-6, 7-5 victory over Eddie Dibbs to gain the finals of the $100,000 Tennis Pro Classic.

Missourian gets 40-pound catch; holds fishing record

DONIPHAN — Lovel Hall stands unique in Missouri angling circles. He is the first individual world record holder the state ever has had.

Hall, who snagged a 40-pound buffalo in the Current River Nov. 19, 1971, already was the state record holder, but Field and Stream magazine, which keeps the most authentic list of world fishing records, has recognized Hall's fish as tops in the "caught by any method" category.

Since Hall snagged the fish, it can't be recongized as a hook and line record. That honor apparently goes to Ella Mae Pidima of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, who caught a 36 pound, eight ounce bigmouth buffalo on a nightcrawler.

It was that catch and the knowledge that Hall's fish was larger that brought the world mark to Missouri. The Departmen of Conservation called Hall's fish to the magazine's attention and after much checking, the magazine recognized Hall.

Missouri has one other world record, a 117-pound blue catfish caught on a trotline in the Osage River in 1964 by Anzel Goans and his sons -- a group effort.

There is one other world record in the offing. Paul Dilley, Springfield, caught a two pound, two ounce green sunfish which is larger than the listed Field and Stream world mark. The magazine is checking documentation on that catch.

National rodeo champs to vie for $5,500 purse

Many top cowboys will be on hand in Sikeston for the 22nd annual Jaycee Bootheel Rodeo, Thursday -Sunday to test the Tommy Steiner rodeo stock and try to win part of the $5,500 purse.

Among those who have indicated they plan to attend are Danny Whiteley of Poplar Bluff, Sandy Kirby of Greenville, Tex., Kaye Kirby of Woodstown, N.J., Chick Elms of Stephenville, Tex., Sammy Groves of New Deal, Tex., and Tommy Puryear of Norman, Okla.

Whiteley, 27, and his wife and son live in Poplar Bluff where he is in business with his father, Mack Whiteley, who owns Auto Parts & Wrecking Co.

Whiteley is coming off the inactive list, where he has been for over a year, because of a badly broken leg which happened at the Salt Lake City, Utah rodeo last year. He has never rodeoed full time, but is a very competent bull rider and steer wrestler. He attended college at East Texas State University where he was a member of the National Intercollegiate Rodeo Team for two years.

Sandy Kirby 26, was last years National Finals Rodeo bareback riding winner. He is currently in the top 10 of the Rodeo Cowboy's Assn., in both the bareback and bull riding and also in the top 10 of the all-around standings. Kirby has shown his versatility in the past by winning three new cars, and one truck in the last four years for being the all-around champion at various rodeos across the U.S.A.

He, his mother, brother and sister live on his rance in Greenville, Texas.

Kaye Kirby, 22, is a brother of Sandy and lives in Woodstown, N.J., where he and his father own and manage a ranch. He mainly rodeos on the east coast until late summer when the rodeos "back east" slow down quite a bit. Kirby is currently in the top 20 of both the bareback and bull riding in the R.C.A. He is also like his brother in being a consistent all-around hand. He proved this by winning the yearly all-around champion awards at the televised Cowtown, N.J., rodeothree years in a row.

Elms, 28, of Stephenville, Texas, will also be contesting at the '74 Sikeston rodeo. He and his wife own and manage a western store in Stephenville. In the winter months he and his wife run the store together and in the summer, when Elms is gone rodeoing, his wife manages it. He is currently in the top 20 bareback riders of the R.C.A. for the 74 year. His rodeoing is confined somewhat to the Southwestern U.S. and he does not "hit the road" hard all year.

Groves, currently ranked tenth in the national saddle bronc riding standings with winnings of $8,917, has indicated plans to return to the Bootheel Rodeo to try to improve on the more than $400 that he won there last year.

Puryear, ranked fourth nationally in the steer wrestling last year, and standing fourth again this year with winnings of $10,361, plans to stop off in Sikeston for the rodeo.

Tommy Steiner will again provide the stock for the rodeo. He is well known for his great bucking bulls and horses, many of which are used at the National Finals Rodeo in Oklahoma, City, Okla.

The case of the reneging producer

By: JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Sexy Sybil was as pretty as a picture with a frame to match. And her greatest admirer was none other than a big time movie producer. Hoping to break into pictures, Sybil cheerfully agreed to accompany him wherever he went In fact, she couldn't have been any closer to him had she been his toupee.

"He promised me a movie career," she tearfully told the judge, "if I acted like a daughter to him. The fact is, I did even more. I permitted him to make love to me for over a year. The closest I ever got to a camera, however, is when he took pictures of me in a penny arcade, five for a quarter. He should be made to pay for not keeping his end of the bargain."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make the reneging producer pay Sybil for not keeping his promise?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that if Sybil had agreed to act like the producer's daughter in exchange for his providing her with a movie career as claimed, she herself, admittedly, failed to abide by the terms of the agreement. By permitting the producer to make love to her, noted the judge, she had not acted like his daughter.

World news in brief

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Despite the Cyprus cease-fire, a three-hour battle flared up Monday night between Greek and Turkish Cypriots in the eastern port of Famagusta. A spokesman for the United Nations peacekeeping force said Greek Cypriot troops apparently ambushed Turkish Cypriots who had left Famagusta's medieval fort, where they had been under siege for several days. Other Turks came to the ambushed refugees' aid with covering gunfire, the spokesman said. Casualty figures were not available.

HIROSHIMA, Japan (AP) — The mayor of Hiroshima, the Japanese city whose name 29 years ago became a synonym for nuclear devastation, demanded today that the world scrap its nuclear arsenals and free mankind of "the awesome threat of suicidal ruin." Mayor Setsuo Yamada spoke at ceremonies commemorating the approximately 85,000 victims of the world's first atomic attack, on Aug. 6, 1945. A second bomb was dropped on Nagasaki on Aug. 9, and Japan surrendered five days later.

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — The first joint session of Australia's Parliament begins today, called by Prime Minister Gough Whitlam to work on the country's devastating inflation — currently 20 per cent annually — and widespread labor unrest. Whitlam called the Senate and House together after the upper house rejected several key pieces of his two-month-old Labor government's legislative package. His party commands a 95-92 majority in the joint session.

Housing authority in Chaffee to be audited

CHAFFEE --The Chaffee City Council announced Monday night that an audit of the Chaffee Housing Authority will be made to see if the city is getting its fair share of money from the authority.

The council made the announcement after the Jaycees had requested that such an audit be made.

The council said it will investigate four different areas, including: the amount of money being paid for water sewage and solid waste pickup; the amount of street lights that are being used and how much the city is paying for this; the amount of money that has been paid by the housing authority in lieu of taxes since 1971; and whether the community center is being used for meetings by local organizations.

The audit report is to be made by Aug. 19, the date of the next council meeting.

The council heard a report that $864.75 has been collected for paving of Cox Hill and Nunn Road. Approximately $125 is reported as still being outstanding. The money is being collected by residents who live in the Cox Hill and Nunn Road area.

The council voted to buy a light and siren for the fire chief to use on his personal car. It also agreed to buy a lawn mower for use at the city cemetery.

New Madrid to tear down buildings deemed hazards

NEW MADRID --The City Council Monday night passed an ordinance providing for the demoliton of derelict buildings. The ordinance states that any building that is deemed a public nuisance, health or fire hazard may be torn down. The ordinance also states that an assessment be made against the premises and provides for the recovery of the cost.

After a study of the city dog ordinance, changes were recommended by Aldermen Bill Boyd and Joe Hunter and accepted by the council.

The alderman recommended that the city build a new dog pound at the water treatment plant site and City Administrator Don Lloyd was authorized to proceed with setting up a new system for the control of dogs.

The council passed a resolution to retain Blanton, Blanton, Rice and Sickal law firm of Sikeston to represent the city in its contract dispute with Associated Electric Cooperative.

The council also approved a directive to Mercantile and Trust Co. of St. Louis for fund investments on power plant issues at St. Jude Industrial Park.

Members of a committee from the New Town Improvement Club who appeared before the council inquiring when street paving would begin were told that corrected resolutions were ready for publication and the paving program would begin following the required publication period.

Action was deferred on accepting bids for solid waste disposal until further study can be taken by aldermen Joe Hunter and James "Ras" Jones.

The council was informed that a meeting is scheduled at 11 a.m. Aug. 13 at the request of the state park and recreation board to discuss the return to the city of 24 acres of land at the Hunter Dawson Historical site which had previously been turned over to the state for development. Mayor Jim Cravens, City Attorney Hal E. Hunter and City Administrator Don Lloyd will attend. Any council member may also attend.

The council approved a new ordinance, a new attorney's opinion and a new warrant for initiating a loan to cover the balance of $78,565 to the Bank of New Madrid for past street and storm drainage improvement; sewer, water and drainage improvement and park land.

Cravens reported to the council that traffic problems at the junction of North Main Street and Route U and at the junction of Route U and Highway 61. He said the highway department advised the city to submit a proposed plan to be studied by the highway department for its approval.

The council approved the appointment of John Stevens to the police department. He is a former Portageville policeman.

In other action, the council approved the raising of light meter deposits on apartment buildings from $8.85 to $25, approved power plant construction payments of $104,463.94 at the 600 -megawatt steam generating plant at St. Jude Industrial Park for the period ending July 1, and accepted a contract closeout from Allis -Chalmers for air compressors of unit one of the power plant.

A package liquor license was approved for Marily Ivy for the premises known as The Sports Shop.

State marriage laws to change

A new law passed during the last session of the Missouri Legislature, scheduled to become effective Aug. 13, will permit couples to obtain a marriage license three days after taking the required blood test, or three days after applying for a license, whichever occurs first.

The law will permit couples who have taken a blood test at least three days previously to apply for and receive a marriage license on the same day. The old law required a three- day waiting period from the date of application.

Another new state law which will affect the current marriage laws is the majority rights bills which extends to 18- year - olds full rights to marry without consent, as well as to sue or be sued, etc. The majority rights for 18 - year - olds include all adult rights except purchase of intoxicating beverages which continues to be age 21.

Under the present law, the right to marry without consent begins at age 21 for men and age 18 for women and the right to sue or be sued begins at age 21 for both sexes.

Marijuana plants killed near Chaffee

CHAFFEE --Acting on a tip from an undercover agent, Chaffee Police Chief Jimmie Coats and two city policemen Sunday morning destroyed 140 marijuana plants in a "popular party area" on a farm east of Chaffee which they discovered Saturday.

The officers were told by the agent that youths often used the area as a place to smoke marijuana and then hide the unused portion in bags in the woods.

Searching the area Saturday morning, the officers found only empty bags, but did discover seven planted pots, each containing 20 marijuana seedlings about 3 inches tall.

About 300 yards away were several 45 -ounce juice cans containing manure and a one -gallon plastic container of water used to cultivate the plants, the police chief said.

The officers returned Sunday morning with a commercial week killer obtained from the city, dug up the plants, exposed them to the sun and used the weed killer to destory them, the chief said.[

Coats said no arrests were made and there are no suspects.

He said finding a suspect might be hard since "Chaffee has between 40 and 50 pot heads."

"The drug situation in Chaffee is not of epidemic proportions, but is on a minimal basis with the drugs being brought in from Cape Girardeau," he added.

He said the source was specifically Cape Girardeau, and not Cape County, adding, "Let's put the monkey on the back where it belongs."

Coats would not disclose the name of the property owner on which the marijuana was located. He said the owner did not know what had been going on and didn't want his name disclosed to the public.

The Scott County sheriff's office say they had not been advised of the plants growing in the area. The police chief made no report of the discovery and asked for no assistance from the sheriff's office in carrying out his "duty" as a private citizen."

Coats said the area is patrolled daily by police looking for evidence of drugs. It is checked every morning, but seldon at night since Chaffee police have no jurisdiction in the area outside the city, he said.

made by Councilman Arthur Ziegenhorn, who said he doubted that extending the runway 500 feet was worth the cost.

The project will cost $235,000, with 75 per cent of the money being provided by the Bootheel Regional Planning Commission, the federal government and the state government.

Bill Swann, representing the Airport Advisory Board, said the longer runway would enable larger planes to use the airport.

Some larger business planes which now use the airport cannot take off fully loaded because of the shortness of the runway.

The project will require an additional 30 to 35 acres, and the city is negotiating a trade with Burt Rowe for some of his farmland at the north end of the runway in exchange for the same amount of land west of the runway.

The trade now being considered would take part of the land that has been set aside for a future golf course at the new city recreational complex.

Whitlock gave the council a map showing the areas that trash haulers will bid on when the city's solid waste disposal plan goes into effect. The plan will probably be implemented on Jan. 1, 1975.

The areas are the wards the Board of Municipal Utilities has divided the city into for collecting water and sewer bills. The Board of Municipal Utilities will collect the garbage hauling fees under the city plan. The fees will be included on the water and sewer bill.

The map is available to any garbage hauler who wants to bid for the right to haul garbage.

The council passed an ordinance establishing a city liquor by the drink license under the new state law which grants resorts the right to sell liquor by the drink.

The state law defines a resort as any motel with 40 rooms and a restaurant or any restaurant doing $100,000 a year in business.

The law becomes effective Aug. 13.

Under the ordinance, the city license will cost $450 per year. The Holiday Inn is the only establishment that has applied for a city liquor by the drink license so far.

Ron Grojean, 814 William St., was appointed to the City Planning and Zoning Commission to replace Raymert Miller, who resigned. Grojean is associated with Grojean Engineers, 301 S. Main St.

The Jaycees were granted a temporary 3.2 per cent beer license for use during the Jaycee Bootheel Rodeo this weekend.

The council rejected a request by Jack Clemmons of Morley for a 3.2 beer license at 21 Club on West Malone Avenue because Clemmons has a police record.

Bond says drought disaster exists in state

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A drought disaster exists in Missouri, Gov. Christopher S. Bond said — Monday.

If U.S. Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz or the President includes Missouri in a drought disaster declaration, Missouri farmers can get loans at five per cent interest from the U.S. Farmers' Home Administration.

John Foster of Columbia, FHA director for Missouri, said farmers can get loans to cover their actual operating loss. To qualify, they must have suffered a 10 per cent over-all loss.

The state Agriculture Department is making a survey to determine what counties should be included in the disaster declaration.

Foster said the drought is "spotted throughout the state."

But southeast Missouri apparently has suffered the most damage.

State Agriculture Director James Boillot has estimated the state will lost half its corn crop, but other officials have only said that the corn crop will be considerably smaller than last year's 88 bushels an acre.

Soybeans are a $400 million annual crop in the state, and Missouri ranked third in the nation last year in soybean production. The state ranks seventh in corn production, with a $300 million annual crop.

Foster said the U.S. Agriculture Department's emergency board asked Bond to write to Butz requesting declaration as a drought disaster area.

Foster said the dry conditions—no substantial rain has fallen since June—is burning the pastureland and farmers may begin sending more cattle to feed lots.

C of C urges new I-55 interchange and north loop

A proposal for an interchange on Interstate 55 between Sikeston and Benton has been revived, and the Sikeston Chamber of Commerce is pushing for the interchange to be located near the north city limits on Tanner Road.

The interchange has been proposed two or three times previously and each time the proposal died according to District 10 Highway Department engineer Lionel Murray.

The Chamber board recently, in a unanimous vote, decided to draft, a resolution supporting the north loop. Bill Wellborn, the chamber's executive vice president, said that the interchange would open up extensive acreage for industrial and residential areas and would ease the traffic problem on East Malone Avenue.

He urged everyone interested in the project to let the state highway commission know their views.

The stretch between Sikeston and Benton is reportedly one of the longest in the state without an interchange. If a northbound motorist misses the Sikeston exit at Highway 62 East, he has to drive to Benton and turn around.

Murray said his office has submitted three locations for an interchange, one at Route U near Blodgett, one at Route H, where an overpass already exists and one at Tanner Road.

Murray said the Route H location would probably be the least expensive because of the existing overpass.

However, from Sikeston's standpoint, the Tanner Road location would be the best, he said, and it is the Tanner Road location that the Sikeston Chamber of Commerce is pushing for.

Charles Mitchell, a Sikeston realtor responsible for reviving the project, said the interchange is needed to alleviate the heavy traffic on Malone Avenue, which has now reached 25,000 cars a day, according to a recent count.

A reduction in traffic could cut down the number of accidents on Malone Avenue.

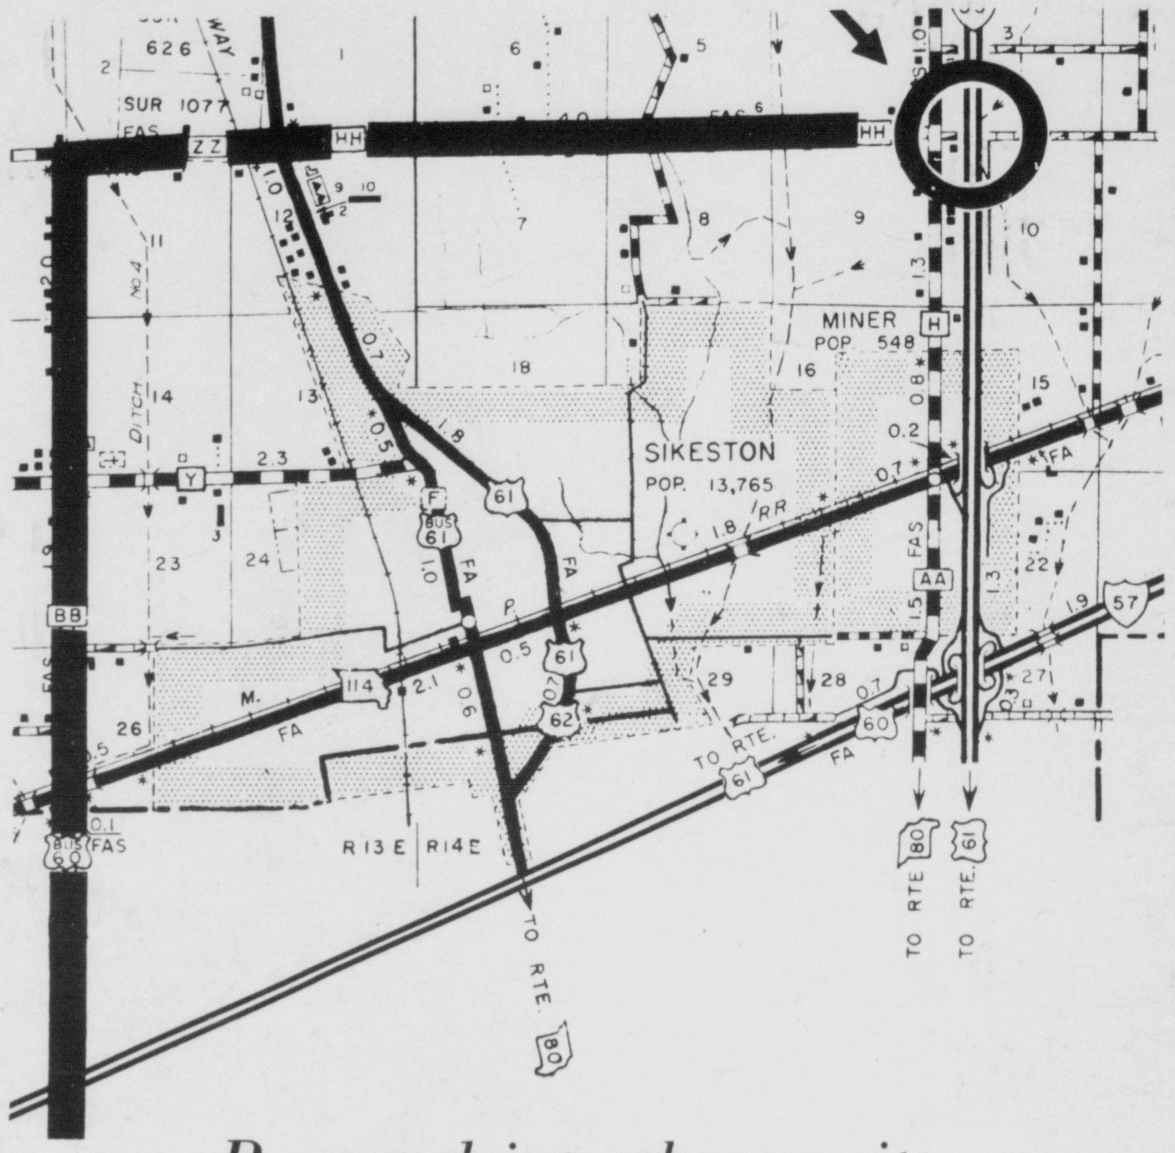
The interchange would help people living on the north end of town who now drive to Benton to get on I- 55 to avoid the traffic on Malone Avenue.

The interchange would also open a large area north of Sikeston and Miner to residential and industrial development.

An interchange would benefit the whole Sikeston -Miner area, Mitchell said.

Final approval for the overpass, if it involves federal funds, must come from the federal government.

Mitchell said letters of support are being requested from the Scott County Court, the county special road district, the Sikeston City Council and Miner Board of Trustees, Bootheel Regional Planning Commission, Sikeston R -6 School District Board of Education and other interested parties.



Proposed interchange site

The Sikeston Chamber of Commerce is pushing for a north interchange on Interstate 55 between Sikeston and Benton to be located near the north city limits at Tanner Road. The route of the proposed north loop which is supported by the Chamber is outlined in a heavy black line with the point of entry from Interstate 55 circled. The interchange would open up industrial and residential areas north of Sikeston and would relieve the traffic problem on East Malone Avenue according to Bill Wellborn, executive vice president of the chamber.

State legislators cast votes on stamp issue

The majority of Missouri representatives voted on June 21 to continue the practice of distributing food stamps to subsidize striking workers.

The vote which decided this matter was taken on an amendment to the Agriculture Appropriations Act which would have banned food stamps for strikers.

The only Missouri representative voting for the amendment, a vote for the ban on the practice was Rep. Gene Taylor of Sarcoxie, who represents southwestern Missouri.

Voting against the amendment, thus in favor of continuing the food stamps for strikers program, were Richard Bowling of Kansas City; Bill Burlison of Cape Girardeau, William Clay of St. Louis; William L. Hungate of Troy, Jerry Litton of Chillicothe, William J. Randall of Independence, Leonor K. Sullivan of St. Louis, James W. Symington of Ladue.

Richard H. Ichord of Houston, Mo., did not vote.

Mahlon R. Aldridge III, general counsel and manager of governmental affairs of the Missouri Chamber of Commerce in Jefferson City said "It seems clear to us that the vast majority of Missourians who oppose governmental strike subsidies at this time of record high prices and inflation. The only way Missouri Congressman can get away with voting against ending strike subsidies is if he thinks you are not aware of his action."

Aldridge urges people to write or call their congressmen and let him know how voters feel about this issue and his vote.

Phone rate hike suspended for 120 days

ST. LOUIS — The Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. of St. Louis on July 2, filed its application for an increase in rates for telephone service in the Missouri service area of the company.

In its application, the company submitted revised tariff sheets containing rates designed to increase annual gross revenues by approximately $48,000,569 based upon its operations as of March 31, exclusive of municipal and county gross receipts taxes.

To allow sufficient time to study the effect of the proposed increases and to determine if they are just, reasonable and in the interest of the public, it was the opinion of the Public Service Commission at a July 29 meeting that the proposed tariffs should be suspended for 120 days beyond Aug. 2, the requested effective date.

The commission, therefore, ordered that tariff sheets submitted July 2 by Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. of St. Louis, for the purpose of increasing rates for telephone service within the Missouri service area of the company, be suspended for 120 days beyond Aug. 2, the requested effective date, to Nov. 30 unless otherwise ordered by the commission.

It was also ordered that the order take effect immediately.

State experiences product shortages

JEFFERSON CITY — Many Missouri industries are feeling the pinch on shortages created by the energy problem, according to results of a survey taken recently by the Missouri Energy Data Exchange in Jefferson City.

Normal order lead times for products used in manufacturing and service industries have lengthened considerably, particularly on steel products, paper and products made of derivatives of oil, such as chemicals and plastics.

Few industries have shut down product lines permanently, according to the survey, but many are depleting their stocks of materials and finding it difficult to obtain new supplies without long delays. Fifty-two per cent of those responding reported product availability delays ranging from just a few days to as long as two years. Only six firms reported dropping specific product lines, with five of those expecting to reinstate production once raw materials are more readily available.

The following items are among those listed by the Missouri Energy Data Exchange. The list indicates the experience Missouri firms have had on acquisition of raw materials used in the manufacturing or service process.

Help travelers enjoy Sikeston

If you want Mr. Traveler to stay longer in Sikeston or "hurry right back" observe and practice these Dos and Don'ts which have been recommended by your Sikeston Chamber of Commerce.

Do

GIVE HIM A WARM WELCOME. Southern hospitality is a refreshing and welcome change to the treatment Mr. Traveler is used to. You've got to flaunt it!

BE HELPFUL. Go out of your way to make Sikeston's out- of- town visitors feel like guests. It is good salesmanship and it sells Sikeston.

BE KNOWLEDGEABLE OF YOUR COMMUNITY. Know all you can about your business, your community, its nearby attractions and the state in which you live. Be proud of Sikeston and the Bootheel. You can be one of her best salesmen. It will mean more money for you too!

TREAT EVERYONE AS AN INDIVIDUAL. Take enough time with each visitor to make him feel you are genuinely interested. Remember, Mr. and Mrs. Traveler is probably in Sikeston trying to get away "production line" type treatment for a few days. Selling takes time --- take time to sell Sikeston.

PUT YOURSELF IN HIS SHOES. Be sympathetic with the fellow who has an awful hangover, asthma, or whatever. Really feel sorry if his car is on the blink or if he is having a hard time finding a place to stay. It pays dividends.

GIVE HIM A FRIENDLY SMILE. Your smile is that personal welcome that reminds Mr. and Mrs. Traveler that they are among friendly folks -- "Sikeston folks." A smile costs so little, yet means so much.

Don't

JUST GET BY WITH WHAT YOU CAN. Nothing irks the visitor more than "just passable service." Don't take the attitude "let 'em holler" or you will never see them again.

STEP ON HIS TOES. Snap back at Mr. Traveler, tell him he doesn't know what he is talking about, treat him like a "Damn Yankee" and you can be sure he won't forget "not to come back."

BE A SOUR-PUSS. One sour-puss can spoil Mr. Visitor on the whole city. Remember "honey catches more flies than vinegar" and when you offend visitors in Sikeston, you are not only hurting your business but that of many others.

GIVE HIM THE COLD SHOULDER. Once Mr. Tourist or Businessman gets the idea that Missourians are unfriendly, home they go to another state as fast as they can. Don't kid yourself that they don't pass the word along too!

BE BORED WITH HIS TROUBLES. Here is one way to ruin the travel business -- just be indifferent to Mr. Traveler's troubles. Keep right on talking to someone else, turn your back, or give him a "so what" look when he is telling you his tale of woe. That will do it!

BE A DUMMY. Don't even pretend to know one thing about Sikeston -- where there is a good place to eat, nearby points of interest how many miles to the next town -- or you can kiss your share of the tourist dollar goodby. Mr. and Mrs. Traveler are headed for a more friendly state.

Every 100 tourists visiting Sikeston each day over a one -year period produce $534,000 in retail sales, $675,000 in personal income, 133 new automobiles, $130,000 in bank deposits, 100 new jobs, and tax monies to educate 42 children.

Remember—you are Sikeston's ambassador

Noranda expands

NEW MADRID --The Noranda Aluminum Co. will spend an estimated $70 million to $90 million on doubling the capacity of its aluminum reduction and fabricating plant at New Madrid, the Globe -Democrat disclosed July 2.

The plant now produces 70,000 tons of ingots, billets and rod and wire aluminum products annually. On completion in mid 1976, the annual capacity will be boosted to 140,000 tons, Clint Halstead, Noranda Plant manager, said. It will mean at least 250 new production jobs.

The Association Electric Co -Operative of Missouri, which operates a 600,000 kilowatt electric generating plant to supply the Noranda plant, is building a 600,000 kilowatt addition to meet Noranda's future electricity needs.

The second generating unit is expected to go into service during the summer of 1977. When complete the 1,200,000 kilowatt plant will be the largest electric cooperative known.

Noranda produces molten aluminun metal in a series of 174 electric furnaces called reduction cells. It uses enough power daily to supply a city of 35,000 people.
